AN ACT TO AMEND

THE

CHARTER OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

PASSED APRIL 7, 1830.—CH. 122.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

1. The legislative power of the Corporation of the city of New York, shall be vested in a Board of Aldermen and a Board of Assistants, who together shall form the Common Council of the city.

2. Each ward of the city shall be entitled to elect one person, to be denominated the Alderman of the ward, and the persons so chosen, together shall form the Board of Aldermen ; and each ward shall also be entitled to elect one person, to be denominated an Assistant Alderman ; and the persons so chosen, together shall form the Board of Assistants.

3. The Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen shall be chosen for one year ; and no person shall be eligible to either office, who shall not, at the time of his election, be a resident of the ward for which he is chosen.

4. The annual election for charter officers shall commence on the second Tuesday in April, and the officers elected shall be sworn into office on the second Tuesday in May thereafter; and all the provisions of law now in force in regard to the notification, duration, and conduct of elections for Members of Assembly, and in regard to the appointment, powers and duties of the inspectors, holding the same, shall apply to the annual election of charter officers.

5. The first election for charter officers, after the passage of this law, shall take place on the second Tuesday in April, one thousand eight hundred and thirty one; and all those persons who shall have been elected under the former laws regulating the election of charter officers, and shall be in office at the time of the passage of this law, shall continue in office until the officers elected under this law shall be entitled to be sworn into office.

6. The Board of Aldermen shall have power to direct a special election to be held, to supply the place of an Alderman whose seat shall become vacant by death, removal from the city, resignation, or otherwise; and the Board of Assistants shall also have power to direct a special election to supply any vacancy that may occur in the Board of Assistants; and in both cases, the person elected to supply the vacancy, shall hold his seat only for the residue of the term of office of his immediate predecessor.

7. The Boards shall meet in separate chambers, and a majority of each shall be a quorum to do business. Each Board shall appoint a President from its own body, and shall also choose its clerk and other officers, determine the rules of its own proceedings, and be the judge of the qualifications of its own members. Each Board shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and the doors of each shall be kept open, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy; and all resolutions and reports of Committees which shall recommend any specific improvement involving the appropriation of public moneys, or taxing or assessing the citizens of said city, shall be published immediately after the adjournment of the Board, under the authority of the Common Council, in all the newspapers employed by the Corporation; and whenever a vote is taken in relation thereto, the ayes and noes shall be called and published in the same manner.

8. Each Board shall have the authority to compel the attendance of absent members; to punish its members for disorderly behavior, and to expel a member with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to the Board; and the members so expelled, shall, by such expulsion, forfeit all his right and powers as an Alderman or Assistant Alderman.

9. The stated and occasional meetings of each Board of the Common Council shall be regulated by its own ordinances; and both Boards may meet on the same or on different days, as they may severally judge expedient.

10. Any law, ordinance or resolution of the Common Council, may originate in either Board, and when it shall have passed one Board, may be rejected or amended by the other.

11. No member of either Board shall, during the period for which he was elected, be appointed to, or be competent to hold any office for which the emoluments are paid from the city treasury, or by fees, directed to be paid by any ordinance or act of the Common Council, or be directly or indirectly interested in any contract, the expenses or considerations whereof are to be paid under any ordinance of the Common Council; but this section shall not be construed to deprive any Alderman or Assistant of any emolument or fees which he is entitled to by virtue of his office.

12. Every act, ordinance or resolution, which shall have passed the two Boards of the Common Council, before it shall take effect, shall be presented, duly certified, to the Mayor of the city for his approbation. If he approve, he shall sign it; if not, he shall return it with his objections to the Board in which it originated, within ten days thereafter; or if such Board be not then in session, at its next stated meeting. The Board to which it shall be returned, shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and cause the same to be published in one or more of the public newspapers of the city.

13. The Board to which such act, ordinance or resolution, has been so returned, shall, after the expiration of not less than ten days thereafter, proceed to reconsider the same. If, after such reconsideration, a majority of the members elected to the Board shall agree to pass the same, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other Board, by which it shall be likewise reconsidered; and if approved by a majority of all the members elected to such Board, it shall take effect as an act or law of the Corporation. In all such cases the votes of both Boards shall be determined by ayes and noes, and the names of the persons voting for and against the passage of the measure reconsidered, shall be entered on the journal of each Board respectively.

14. If the Mayor shall not return any act, ordinance, or resolution so presented to him within the time above limited for that purpose, it shall take effect in the same manner as if he had signed it.

15. Neither the Mayor nor Recorder of the city of New York shall be a member of the Common Council thereof, after the second Tuesday of May, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one.

16. Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of Mayor, and whenever the Mayor shall be absent from the city, or be prevented by sickness, or any other cause, from attending to the duties of his office, the President of the Board of Aldermen shall act as Mayor, and shall possess all the rights and powers of the Mayor during the continuance of such vacancy, absence or disability.

17. It shall be the duty of the Mayor.

FIRST. To communicate to the Common Council, at least once a year, and oftener, if he shall deem it expedient, a general statement of the situation and condition of the city, in relation to its government, finances and improvements.

SECOND. To recommend to the adoption of the Common Council all such measures, connected with the police, security, health, cleanliness, and ornament of the city, and the improvement of its government and finances, as he shall deem expedient.

THIRD. To be vigilant and active in causing the laws and ordinances of the government of the city to be duly executed and enforced.

FOURTH. To exercise a constant supervision and control over the conduct and acts of all subordinate officers, and to receive and examine into all such complaints as may be preferred against any of them for violation or neglect of duty; and generally to perform all such duties as may be prescribed to him by the charter and city ordinances, and the laws of this state and the United States.

18. Annual and occasional appropriations shall be made by proper ordinances of the Common Council for every branch and object of city expenditure, nor shall any money be drawn from the city treasury, except the same shall have been previously appropriated to the purposes for which it was drawn.

19. The Common Council shall not have authority to borrow any sums of money whatever on the credit of the Corporation, except in anticipation of the revenue of the year in which such loan shall be made, unless, authorized by a special act of the legislature.

20. It shall be the duty of the Common Council to publish, two months before the annual election of charter officers, in each year, for the general information of the citizens of New York, a full and detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Corporation during the year ending on the first day of the month in which such publication was made; and in every such statement the different sources of city revenue, and the amount received from each; the several appropriations made by the Common Council, the objects for which the same were made, and the amount of moneys expended under each; the moneys borrowed on the credit of the Corporation, the authority under which each loan was made, and the terms on which the same was obtained, shall be clearly and particularly specified.

21. The executive business of the Corporation of New York, shall hereafter be performed by distinct departments, which it shall be the duty of the Common Council to organize and appoint for that purpose.

22. It shall be the duty of the Common Council to provide for the accountability of all officers and other persons to whom the receipt or expenditures of the funds of the city shall be intrusted, by requiring from them sufficient security for the performance of their duties or trust, which security shall be annually renewed; but the security first taken shall remain in force until new security shall be given.

23. The Clerk of the Board of Aldermen shall, by virtue of his office, be Clerk of the Common Council, and shall perform all the duties heretofore performed by the Clerk of the Common Council, except such as shall be assigned to the Clerk of the Board of Assistant Aldermen; and it shall be his duty to keep open for inspection, at all reasonable times, the records and minutes of the proceedings of the Common Council, except such as shall be specially ordered otherwise.

24. The division of the Common Council into two Boards shall not take effect until the officers to be elected under this law shall enter on the duties of their office. Each Board shall hold its first meeting for the purpose of organizing, on the second Tuesday of May in each year, at which time the Mayor or Clerk of the Common Council shall attend, by whom the oath of office shall be administered to the members elected. In the absence of the Mayor and Clerk, such oath may be administered by the Recorder, or First Judge of the city, or by any of the Justices of the Superior Court.

25. None of the provisions of this act, except the eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth and twenty-second sections, shall be construed as applying to the Common Council as now constituted.

26. Such parts of the charter of the city of New York, and of the several acts of the Legislature amending the same, as are not inconsistent with the provisions of this law, shall not be construed as repealed, modified, or in any manner affected thereby, but shall continue and remain in full force.

CHARTER OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

PASSED APRIL 2, 1849, "THREE-FIFTHS BEING PRESENT."

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

§ 1. The legislative power of the Corporation of the city of New York, shall continue to be vested in a Board of Aldermen and a Board of Assistant Aldermen, who, together, shall form the Common Council of the city. The Board of Aldermen shall consist of one Alderman from each ward, who shall be elected by the people of the respective wards for two years. The Board of Assistant Aldermen shall consist of one Assistant Alderman from each ward, who shall be elected in like manner, and shall hold their office for one year.

§ 2. The election for charter officers shall be held on the day of the general state election, when all charter officers eligible, by the people, shall be chosen, and the officers who shall be elected, shall be sworn into office on the first Monday of January thereafter; and the laws of the state regulating elections, shall apply to elections of charter officers; but the Common Council may, by law, extend the time for the canvass of the votes. The Mayor shall hold his office for a period of two years.

§ 3. The Common Council, during the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty, may hold its sessions as often as each Board shall, by resolution, appoint, and thereafter the Common Council shall annually hold only three stated sessions of not exceeding one month each, commencing on the first Monday of January, May and September. The Mayor may convene the Common Council or the Board of Aldermen, only, at any time between the sessions, if, in his judgment, any exigency shall have arisen to render such a proceeding necessary, on the request, in writing, of a majority of the members elected to each Board, specifying the purposes for which such meeting is called; in which case, the action of the Common Council shall be confined to the matters in reference to which it shall have been so convened, or to such other matters as may be submitted by the Mayor for its consideration, during such session; and the respective Boards may adjourn from day to day, until such business shall be completed.

§ 4. The Boards shall sit in separate chambers, and the doors shall be kept open, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy. A majority of each shall be a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may compel the attendance of absent members. Each Board shall appoint a President from its own body ; shall choose its Clerk and other officers ; determine the rules of its own proceedings ; be the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members ; keep a journal of its proceedings, and have power to direct special elections to fill its own vacancies ; to compel the attendance of members ; to punish them for disorderly conduct, and expel a member by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected, after five days' notice, and opportunity of being heard has been given to him ; but such resolution of expulsion shall be of no effect unless it contain a provision for a special election within two weeks thereafter to supply such vacancy ; provided, however, that such special election shall not be ordered unless there be at least two months of the term of the expelled member unexpired. The Clerk of the Board of Aldermen shall, by virtue of his office, be Clerk of the Common Council, and shall perform all the duties heretofore performed by the Clerk of the Common Council, except such as shall be assigned to the Clerk of the Board of Assistant Aldermen ; and it shall be his duty to keep open for inspection, at all reasonable times, the records and minutes of the proceedings of the Common Council, except such as shall be especially ordered otherwise. The two Boards shall have concurrent powers, and a negative on each other's proceedings, and shall in all cases act as separate bodies, and shall not appoint Joint Committees, except a Committee on Accounts. Each Board may originate, amend, concur in, or reject any law, ordinance, or resolution ; but no law shall pass either Board, except by a majority of the members elected. Neither Board shall adjourn for a longer period than three days, except by a resolution, to be concurred in by the other body.

§ 5. It shall be the duty of the Clerks of the respective Boards, to publish all ordinances, and amendments of ordinances which shall be passed, and also the proceedings, in the newspapers employed by the Corporation, except such parts as may require secrecy ; and whenever a vote shall be taken in either Board, upon the passage of a resolution or ordinance which shall contemplate any specific improvement, or involve the sale, disposition or income therefrom, or lay any tax or assessment, such resolution or ordinance shall, before the same shall be sent to the other Board, and immediately after the adjournment of the Board, at which the same shall have been passed, be published with the ayes and nocs, with the names of the persons voting for and against the same in at least two newspapers, as a part of the proceedings ; and no act, resolution, or ordinance which shall have passed one Board, shall be acted upon by the other Board on the same day, unless by unanimous consent, except in case of invasion, insurrection, or pestilence.

§ 6. If any ordinance or resolution passed by each Board, as provided by sections twelve and thirteen of the amended charter of one thousand eight hundred and thirty, shall not be returned by the Mayor within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall become a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the close of the session of the Common Council shall prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law until the expiration of five days after the commencement of the next session of the Common Council, by whom the ordinance or resolution shall be reconsidered, if returned within such time, and be disposed of in the same manner, and with the like effect, as if presented at the preceding session.

§ 7. No money shall be drawn from the city treasury, except the same shall have been previously appropriated to the purpose for which it is drawn; and all appropriations shall be based upon specific and detailed statements, in writing, of the several heads of the departments, through the Comptroller.

§ 8. The Board of Assistant Aldermen shall have the sole power of impeachment of all city officers, not otherwise provided for, and pending such impeachment, and until the final disposition thereof, the party impeached shall not exercise any of the functions of his office. The Board of Aldermen shall have the sole power to try all impeachments; when sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation, truly and impartially to try the impeachment, according to evidence; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members elected to said Board. Judgment, in case of impeachment, shall not extend farther than removal from office and disqualification to hold any office under the city charter; but the party convicted shall be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law.

§ 9. The executive power of the Corporation shall be vested in the Mayor, the heads of departments, and such other executive officers as shall be, from time to time, created by law, and neither the Common Council nor any Committee or member thereof, shall perform any executive business whatever, except such as is, or shall be, especially imposed on them by the laws of the state, and except that the Board of Aldermen may approve or reject the nominations made to them, as hereinafter provided.

§ 10. There shall continue to be an Executive Department, which shall be known as the "Police Department," and the Mayor of the city shall be the head officer thereof. There shall be a bureau in this department, and the chief officer thereof shall be denominated the "Chief of Police."

§ 11. There shall be an Executive Department, which shall be denominated "the Department of Finance," which shall have control of all the fiscal concerns of the Corporation, and shall prescribe the forms of keeping and rendering all city accounts whatever, and all accounts rendered to or kept in the several departments of the city government, shall be subject to the inspection and revision of the officers of this department. It shall settle and adjust all claims whatsoever by the Corporation or against them, and all accounts whatsoever, in which the Corporation is concerned, either as debtor or creditor. The chief officer of this department shall be called "the Comptroller of the City of New York." There shall be a bureau in this department for the collection of the revenue accruing from taxes, the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Receiver of Taxes," who shall nominate, and with the advice and consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint so many Clerks as shall be authorized by the Common Council; provided that nothing in this act contained shall be held to interfere with the tenure of office of the present Receiver of Taxes and Deputy Receiver of Taxes, as established by the act passed April 11, 1848. There shall be a bureau in this department, for the collection of the revenue accruing from rents and interest on bonds and mortgages, and for the performance of such other duties as may be directed by the Common Council, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Collector of the City Revenue." AN ACT

OF NEW YORK.

PASSED MAY 7, 1844, BY A TWO-THIRD VOTE.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

ARTICLE I—OF POLICE.

§ 3. The Corporation, by ordinance, shall divide the city into two or more Police Districts, in each of which districts shall be established a Police Court and office.

§ 4. The business of the Police Courts, in two of said police districts, shall be conducted by the Police Courts now established by law, in and for said city; and if the city shall be divided into more than two police districts, the Police Court which shall be established for such additional district, shall possess all the powers, and be subject to all the laws relating to the police courts now established in and for said city. The Corporation, by ordinance, shall prescribe the time and place for holding such courts, and shall designate the magistrates and clerks for each police district.

§ 7. Captains of Police, within their respective districts, shall be Street Inspectors, Health Wardens, Fire Wardens, and Dock Masters; and in the Twelfth Ward, in addition thereto, shall be Superintendent of Roads; such Captains, aided and assisted by the Assistant Captains of Police and policemen, shall do and perform all the duties heretofore performed by the several officers in this section mentioned.

§ 10. In case of the absence of the Captain, the duties required of him shall be performed by the first Assistant Captain, and in his absence, by the Second Assistant Captain, who, while acting in such capacity, shall possess and exercise the powers and rights of such captain.

§ 11. At any alarm of fire, it shall be the duty of the Captain of Patrol, nearest the scene of conflagration, forthwith to proceed to the same, with one half of the number of policemen off duty, to be diligent in preserving order and protecting property. In case of any riot, or any sudden emergency requiring the services of the police, on notice being given, the Captain of Police shall forthwith proceed to the scene of riot, with the whole of the police off duty, or any part thereof, and be vigilant in suppressing the same.

FIRE DEPARTMENT FUND.

~~~~~ TRUSTEES' REPORT FOR 1852.

The close of the financial year of the Fire Department, brings with it the pleasing duty of the trustees to communicate to the representatives the transactions of the Board during the period which has elapsed since the date of their last annual report. The receipts of the Treasurer, from all sources, have been larger this than during the previous year, while the expenditures have been correspondingly heavy. The unexampled severity of the last winter is still vivid in the recollection of all, and the distress and suffering consequent upon its protracted duration were never felt in this city with more intensity. To mitigate the distress, to relieve the suffering of the many claimants entitled to our aid and assistance, was a work of no ordinary character. The Trustees, however, lent themselves to the sad, yet pleasant duty, by giving their personal attention to all applications for relief; and, while exercising a sound discrimination with regard to the circumstances and condition of the recipients, had the gratification to know that the charities of the Department were never more opportunely and beneficially exerted, and its perfect system of benevolence more beautifully illustrated. In the Treasurer's report will be found the names of the various individuals and associations who have so signally aided the Trustees in the good work they are engaged in. The bequest of two thousand dollars from the late James E. Boisseau, Esq., referred to in the last report, was promptly paid to the Treasurer by the executors of our deceased friend.

The Department is also under obligations to many other friends—to the accomplished and gifted Alboni, who, with her unrivaled troupe, gave us the proceeds of a concert at Metropolitan Hall; to Lola Montes, the celebrated danseuse; and to our distinguished fellow-citizen, William B. Astor, Esq., who, by his liberal contributions, exhibits undiminished confidence in the integrity of the Department. The Trustees take pleasure in acknowledging additional donations from the editors and proprietors of the Herald, the N. Y. Sun, and Evening Mirror—all of which will be found enumerated in the annexed report of the Treasurer. That officer reports that there was remaining in his hands, last year, a balance of six hundred and thirty dollars and twenty-two cents, since which time he has received from various sources the sum of twenty-seven thousand one hundred and sixty-five dollars and nine cents, which, in the aggregate, amounts to twenty-seven thousand seven hundred and ninety-five dollars and thirty-one cents: out of which there has been expended the sum of thirteen thousand nine hundred and forty-three dollars and seventy-eight cents; invested, thirteen thousand four hundred dollars; leaving a balance deposited in the Butchers and Drovers' Bank, to the credit of the Fire Department Fund, of four hundred and fifty-one dollars and fifty-three cents. The Permanent Fund of the Department now amounts to seventy-two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars, which is invested as follows, viz.: loaned on bond and mortgage, seventy-two thousand dollars; and two hundred and fifty dollars in Manhattan Bank stock. In the Permanent Fund are invested, for the benefit of the widow and orphans of David Raymer, six hundred and thirty-five dollars; for the widow and orphans of James S. Wells, one thousand dollars; for the widow and orphans of George Kerr, two thousand dollars; for the widow and orphans of John L. Guire, two thousand one hundred dollars, and for the widow and orphans of John Green, recently deceased, one thousand dollars; which several amounts have been subscribed by benevolent individuals, associations, and the Common Council of this city, for their exclusive benefit during their widowhood and minority of the children, but eventually reverts to the Permanent Fund of the Department. At present, the Trustees pay to them the interest, at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, which amounts, deducted, leaves the actual fund of the Department, sixty-five thousand five hundred and fifteen dollars. It will be observed, that the Trustees have expended for various objects, such as the purchase of wood, coal and shoes, and in the payment of pensions to widows, occasional pecuniary aid to the helpless and sick, and in interring the dead, &c., &c., the large sum of thirteen thousand nine hundred and forty three-dollars and seventy-eight cents. While the expenditures continue thus heavy, it should stimulate the Department to renewed exertions, to prevent a falling off in the annual amount of the receipts. The pension list increases in numbers every year; large quantities of coal have to be purchased, and contracts for shoes have to be made, none of which can be diminished without causing deep distress.

The School Committee, who have the disposal and distribution of shoes among the children of firemen attending the public schools, have discharged their duty with singular fidelity and devotion. No less than thirteen hundred and sixty-three pairs of shoes have been distributed since their last report. The most indifferent observer will perceive, at a glance, the moral excellence of this institution, which, during one of the most bitter cold winters on record, supplied many hundreds of children, and aged and indigent widows, with the means of rendering them comfortable at that most inclement season. The Trustees, in acknowledging the support they have received, deem it proper to state, that they know the Fire Department has ever been regarded by their fellow-citizens as an object of their especial favor, as being the right arm of the municipal force of the city, and as the great agent upon which is depending the safety and preservation of this metropolis. In addition to these considerations, their fellow-citizens have other motives for entertaining this good opinion, for they acknowledge the fact, that the Fire Department has a noble charity connected with it; that sick and disabled firemen, and aged and indigent widows and helpless orphans, look to it for succor and support, and they liberally sustain it by their donations.

It is unnecessary to say, that the Department set a high value on the good opinion of their fellow-citizens, and the Trustees are convinced, that no fireman would, by any act of his, wish to impair or jeopardize this mark of confidence and regard. The Trustees refer to this subject, to correct erroneous impressions, and to vindicate the Department from unjust reproach, because, upon several occasions, disputes and difficulties have arisen, which, in the heat and excitement, the hurry and rush of the moment, are caused, not by firemen, but by the immense crowds of eager men and vicious boys, who are drawn together from all parts of this mighty city, and who appear to thrive upon the excitement, and luxuriate in the disturbances of their own creation. In this connection, the Trustees cannot too strongly impress upon the members of the Department, the importance of observing, upon all occasions, the strictest decorum and good order; avoiding all unnecessary noise and excitement in the performance of their duties, and regarding those who encourage disputes, or engage in acts of insubordination, as enemies to the best interests of the Department, and foes to the welfare of its charitable fund. By acting thus, they will be sure to command the respect of the entire community, and thereby preserve and perpetuate the blessings which their institution now confers upon distressed and suffering humanity.

A vacancy will exist at the next term of the New York University, in one of the Van Schaick scholarships, occasioned by the completion of James C Sinclair's course of studies, for which early application should be made to this Board.

The several suits commenced against Alfred Pell, Joseph Hoxie, and John Noble, the insurance agents, have not, as yet, been decided. A decision was expected at the July term of the Court of Common Pleas, but was not given.

Three Trustees are to be elected at the annual meeting. The terms for which James Kelly, John B. Peck and William Wakeman were elected, expiring by limitation.

All of which is respectfully submitted, by order of the Board.

[Signed.]

JOHN COGER, JR., President.

JAMES KELLY, Secretary.

THE NEW ARMORY R DOWN TOWN ARSENAL.

This edifice which is nearly finished, is situated on the corner of White and Elm streets. It is one hundred and thirty-one feet on White street, and eighty-four feet on Elm street. It is built of blue stone, only two stories high, the first being thirteen feet, and the second thirty feet high. The windows are very narrow, being only eighteen inches wide, so that in case of an assault by a mob outside, the building could be defended with success by fifty men. The first floor is to be used as a gun room, the second as a drill room, and a rendezvous in case of a riot. The style is Gothic, and on the three corners of the building are situated towers; there will be five doors on White street and one on Elm, which are made of boiler iron. It is built on piles driven into the ground. This building, when finished, will be used as a receptacle for the artillery of the first division of the New York State Militia. It is a very handsome building, and is constructed on the very best plan for defence. On the centre of the roof will be erected a large flag staff by which communication from this building and the arsenal up town may be carried on by signal telegraph.

AQUEDUCT BRIDGE AT SING SING.

REVENUES OF THE CROTON WATER WORKS.

When the great work of constructing the Croton Aqueduct was first seriously entertained, it met with opposition from many honest and practical individuals, who dreaded the accumulation of so large a debt as its construction would inevitably create, with so uncertain and remote an expectation that its revenues would meet the interest of that debt. The receipt of money derived from the distribution of water commenced on the 5th of October, 1842; and the following table gives the progressive increase for the first ten years:

|                                               |             |

| “ May 1, 1844, to May 1, 1845.....            | 118,582 74  |
| “ May 1, 1845, to May 1, 1846.....            | 164,532 53  |
| “ May 1, 1846, to May 1, 1847.....            | 194,551 34  |
| “ May 1, 1847, to May 1, 1848.....            | 226,551 83  |
| “ May 1, 1848, to May 1, 1849.....            | 250,483 12  |
| “ May 1, 1849, to Dec. 31, 1850, Eight months | 259,532 48  |
| “ Jan. 1, 1850, to Dec. 31, 1850.....         | 458,951 87  |
| “ Jan. 1, 1851, to Dec. 31, 1851.....         | 458,789 83  |
| “ Jan. 1, 1852, to Dec. 31, 1852.....         | 533,965 26  |

On the 1st January, 1850, a law imposing the water rates on all buildings situate on a street in which the distributing pipes are laid, went into effect; previous to that time, charges for water were confined to those only who had it conveyed into their premises. It will be seen that the receipts for 1851 are a trifle less than those for the previous year, owing to the intermediate passage of an ordinance by the Common Council reducing the rates, such reduction being estimated to be equal to $40,000 per annum.

Should the rates now charged be continued, and no unforeseen commercial calamity supervene to check the growth of the city, it is thought that the income derived from water will, in the year 1860, reach a million of dollars.

These revenues are irrevocably pledged to a sinking fund for the ultimate payment of the debt created in the construction of the works, and are already sufficient, with other items appropriated to the same fund, to meet the interest on that debt. Nothing is now included in the annual taxes for this purpose.

The unpaid debt referred to is less than $10,000,000, and the progressive increase of water rates offers a sure guarantee of its early extinguishment. This may, however, and probably will be somewhat deferred by an increase of that debt, consequent upon the intended construction of a new "grand reservoir," covering ninety-six acres, and of a capacity to hold seven hundred and fifty millions six hundred thousand gallons—by expensive additions to the High Bridge, over Harlem river, and by the prospective necessity of converting some of the numerous lakes, forming the sources of the Croton, into reservoirs for the storage of water.

Whatever additions to the work the future may require, each and all of them will be for the purpose of enlarging the supply, and with that of increasing the revenue; so that as the outlay shall be made, the means of repaying it will, at the same time, be provided.

[The foregoing was kindly furnished by the President of the Croton Aqueduct.]

The objects of the Institution are—first, to meliorate the condition of prisoners, whether detained as witnesses, for trial, or finally convicted; second, the improvement of Prison discipline and government of State and County Prisons; third, the support and encouragement of reformed convicts after their discharge, by affording them employment, and sustaining them in their efforts to reform.

The business of the Association is intrusted to a Committee on Finance, a Committee on Detentions, a Committee on Prison Discipline, and a Committee on Discharged Convicts, which, together with the officers, form the Executive Committee of the Association.

Its charter gives it the power to establish a work-house, and make its duties to examine all our Prisons, and report their condition to the Legislature.

Connected with the Association, and auxiliary to it, is a Female Department called "THE HOME," under the care of an Executive Committee of Ladies, which takes charge of discharged female convicts.

Provided, that when the distance exceeds half a mile, and is within a mile, one-third more shall be added to the above rates and prices, and in the same proportion for any greater distance. And if any public cartman shall ask, demand, receive, take, exact or extort any greater rate, price, pay or compensation, for carting or transporting any article or thing whatsoever, than is mentioned, allowed, expressed and limited, as aforesaid, it shall not be lawful for him to receive any compensation for the said carting or transportation, and the such asking or receiving shall be deemed a violation of this ordinance.

It shall not be lawful for any public cartman to neglect or refuse to carry and transport a good and sufficient load, as much as can be conveniently and safely stowed on his cart, or is reasonable for one horse to draw, nor any article of less than two thousand pounds weight, when required so to do, unless he be then actually otherwise employed; and every public cartman and public porter shall be entitled to be paid the legal rate or compensation allowed and provided in this ordinance, immediately upon the carting or transportation of any article or thing; and it may be lawful for any such public cartman or public porter, to retain any article or thing so carted or transported by him, for which he is not so paid his cartage, and to convey the same, without delay, to the office of Chief of Police, and he shall be entitled to the lawful rate of pay or compensation for the so conveying. All disputes or disagreements as to distance, or rates of compensation, between public cartmen or public porters, and persons employing or owing them for cartage or transportation, shall be determined by the Mayor.

It shall not be lawful for any public cartman, or any other person, to cart or transport through any of the streets of said city, any poles, plank, spars, timber, or other thing exceeding thirty feet in length, except on a suitable truck or other vehicle, and such plank or other thing be placed lengthwise thereon, so as not to project at either end beyond the line of the side or width of such truck or other vehicle; and all persons so carting or transporting any such poles, plank, timber, spars, or other things, in any other manner, shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this article.

It shall not be lawful for the driver or other person having charge of any public cart, dirt-cart, or any other vehicle, to be off or away from any such cart, or any other vehicle, while the same is moving or passing along any of the streets or avenues of said city; nor shall it be lawful for any public cartman, while waiting for employment at any place assigned for his cart, to stand waiting for employment, or at any other place, to snap or flourish his whip, or to be away from his cart, unless from necessity or on business, or to sit or stand about the door-steps or platforms in front of any house, store or other building, to the annoyance of the occupants thereof.

It shall not be lawful for any person, who has been licensed to keep public carts, or to be a public cartman, and whose license has been suspended or revoked by the Mayor, to keep, drive or use any public cart in the city of New York, under the penalty of twenty-five dollars for every such offence.

The stanchions of every public cart employed in the transportation of any fire-wood, shall be shouldered with a band of iron around the part which enters the mortice, and the mortice cased with iron so as to prevent the wearing of the stanchion or mortice; or at least three feet distant from the floor of the cart, there shall be fixed across, from one stanchion to the other, an iron chain, so as to prevent the stanchions from spreading, and no public cartman shall cart any fire-wood in violation of any of these provisions.

It shall not be lawful for any person to keep, drive, use, or employ, any cart, wagon, truck, dray, or other vehicle, other than such as are licensed as herein provided, for the transportation or conveyance of any article or thing, from place to place, in the city of New York, unless the name and residence, or place of business, where such owner can be found [of the owner thereof,] be fairly and distinctly painted with red paint, on a white ground, in plain letters and figures, at least two and a half inches long, in a conspicuous place, on both sides of such cart or other vehicle, so as at all times to be easily seen thereon.

LAW TO REGULATE PUBLIC PORTERS.

1. The Mayor shall license and appoint as many and such persons as he may think expedient, to be public porters of the city of New York, and revoke or suspend any or all of such licenses at his pleasure, and it shall not be lawful for any person to use any wheelbarrow or hand-cart, to carry, transport, or convey baggage, goods, or other things, from place to place, within said city, for hire, wages, or pay for such conveyance, or to be at any hotel, boarding-house, ferry, steamboat landing, railroad station or depot, and solicit of strangers, travelers, citizens, or other persons, or accept the conveyance of baggage or other articles, without being licensed as aforesaid by the Mayor.

This section shall not be construed to prevent any person keeping, or employed in, any hotel or boarding-house, from conveying any baggage or other articles to or from such hotel or boarding-house, and using a hand-cart or wheelbarrow therefor; provided the name of the hotel or boarding-house, and the keeper thereof, be painted distinctly on both sides of such wheelbarrow or hand-cart, and on a badge worn on the front of his hat or cap, so as to be easily and distinctly seen.

2. All licenses to public porters, granted as aforesaid, shall run one year from the date thereof; and may be renewed by the Mayor at any time within the said year, for a succeeding year.

3. Every person receiving a license to be a public porter, as aforesaid, shall pay to the Mayor, for the use of the city, one dollar; and a further sum of seventy-five cents, upon the renewal of every such license.

4. Every public porter shall wear, in a conspicuous place about his person, so as to be easily seen, a brass plate, or badge, on which shall be engraved his name, the words "public porter," and the number of his license; and it shall be unlawful for any other person to wear or exhibit any badge, purporting to be, resembling, or similar to, the badge of a public porter; and no public porter shall permit any other person to wear his badge, or use his name in any way whatever, in the transportation or conveyance of any thing.

5. Public porters shall be entitled to charge and receive for the carrying or conveyance of any article, any distance within half a mile, twelve cents, if carried by hand, and twenty-five cents, if carried on a wheelbarrow or hand-cart ; if the distance exceeds half a mile, and is within one mile, one-half of the above rates in addition thereto, and in the same proportion for any greater distance.

6. If any public porter shall ask or demand any greater rate of pay or compensation for the carrying or conveyance of any articles than is herein provided, he shall not be entitled to any pay for the said service ; and to so ask, demand, or receive any such greater pay or compensation, shall be deemed a violation of this ordinance.

7. It shall not be lawful for any person to represent himself as, or to wear or exhibit any badge, inscription, card, or device, purporting or implying that he is employed or authorized by the keeper, proprietors, agent or officer of any hotel, boarding-house, vessel, steamboat, or railroad company, to solicit, receive, or convey persons, baggage, or other things to or from any such hotel, boarding-house, vessel, steamboat, or railroad company's station or depot, without being actually and duly authorized by such keeper, proprietor, officer, or agent so to do, under the penalty of twenty-five dollars for every offence.

All persons who shall violate or fail to comply with any of the provisions of this ordinance, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished, pursuant to the provisions of sections 20 and 21 of an act relative to the powers of the Common Council of the city of New York and the criminal courts of said city, passed by the Legislature of the State of New York, January 23d, 1833 ; or, in lieu thereof, shall forfeit and pay, for the use of said city, ten dollars for each and every offence, except where a penalty is prescribed in said ordinance.

2. Whenever any printed matter on which the postage is required to be pre-paid, shall, through the inattention of the Postmasters, or otherwise, be sent without pre-payment, the same shall be charged with double the above rates.

3. Bound books and parcels of printed matter, not weighing over thirty-two ounces, shall be deemed mailable matter.

Periodicals published at intervals, not exceeding three months, and sent from the office of publication to actual and bona fide subscribers, are to be charged with one half the rates mentioned in the last above table, and pre-payment of a quarter's postage thereon must, in all cases, be required. The Comparative

* The statement

Showing an increase, in favor of the first quarter of 1852, of 67,101 letters, and 68,940 papers.

To the gross amount of sea letters, 1,332,461, add the domestic correspondence of the quarter, 5,603,493, and 180,000 circulars, and it will give 7,115,954 letters and circulars, that have passed through the office during the quarter, or a daily average nearly 80,000.

The gross amount of domestic and foreign letters sent and received for the quarter ending June 30, 1851, being the last quarter under the old law, was 4,494,430, showing an increase in favor of the quarter ending March 31, 1852, of 1,119,063 letters, or about twenty-five per cent., independent of the vast increase of circulars.

The average number of daily mails made up and despatched for the same quarter is about 4,900; and about the same number are received, assorted, and delivered, or distributed daily.

The number of dead letters received at this office from the dead letter office at Washington for the same quarter, and containing property of value, consisting of money in various sums, bills of exchange, &c., for amounts ranging from $1 to $62,000, is three hundred and thirty-three, two hundred and twenty-five of which have been delivered to the proper parties, and the remaining one hundred and eight, having been unclaimed, were returned to the dead letter office.

In addition to the above, must be taken into consideration the enormous quantity of domestic papers daily passing through the office, as exchanges and to subscribers, and the reader may then form only a slight estimate of the very great quantity of work transacted in the Post Office. This vast amount of business, which allows of no interruption or postponement, is transacted by ninety-five clerks; eighty-nine commence their labors at half-past five o'clock in the morning, and remain on duty until five o'clock, P. M., when six night clerks go on duty, and remain until five o'clock, in the morning.

* NOTE.—In March, 1815, Mr. Clinton was removed by the Council of Appointment, and John Ferguson, Esq., appointed Mayor. Mr. Ferguson then being Naval Officer of the Customs, was required by the President to state which of the two offices he would hold. By the advice of friends, he resigned the Mayoralty in June following, when the Council appointed Jacob Radcliffe, Esq., in his place. Mr. Ferguson held the Naval Office to the time of his death, in September, 1832. There being no minutes of this change in the books of the Common Council, the above is furnished for the compiler by a friend.

SCENE OF DUTCH COTTAGE

DUTCH COTTAGE IN BEAVER STREET, 1876.

By Geo. Mayne, Jr. 1876. Reproduced by permission of the artist.

Previous to the taking of the city by the English, in 1664, the City Government had been composed of a magistracy called the Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens. The presiding officer of this body, (which was a court as well as a legislative council,) was the Schout, whose duties were similar to those of Sheriff of the present day. Sketches of the personal history of these magistrates have been given in a previous number of the Manual.

SKETCHES OF THE MAYORS OF NEW YORK,

From 1665 to 1834.

THOMAS WILLETT.

MAYOR IN 1665—7.

CAPTAIN WILLETT, the first Mayor of New York, was an Englishman, who emigrated to America with the Pilgrims, and arrived at Plymouth in 1629. He soon after engaged in trade with neighboring settlements, and was one of the pioneers of the carrying trade on the Sound, between this city (then New Amsterdam) and the English settlements. He is found to have acquired landed interests as early as the year 1645, and probably had a temporary residence established here, at that period. In subsequent years when questions of territorial boundary arose between the Dutch and their English neighbors, he was an efficient and active negotiator between the respective parties, as he had acquired a knowledge of the Dutch language from his constant intercourse with them. On the conquest of this city by Col. Nichols, in 1664, it was the policy of that officer to conciliate the Dutch inhabitants by the appointment of magistrates as nearly as possible unobjectionable to the Dutch, for which purpose Captain Willett was chosen as the head of the magistracy.

After his retirement from office, having become advanced in age, he retired to his farm at Rehoboth, now in the town of Seekonk, Bristol county, Massachusetts, where he died August 4, 1674.

Captain Willett had married, July 6, 1636, Mary, a daughter of John Brown, of Plymouth, by whom he had the following children: Thomas, Hester, Rebecca, James, Andrew, Samuel, and Hezekiah, the last of whom was murdered by the Indians during King Philip's war, in 1676. Captain Willett left considerable property in the province of New York, and his son Thomas resided here, and became one of the leading citizens of his time. The great-great grandson of the first Mayor, viz., Col. Marinus Willett, held the same office one hundred and forty years subsequently (1897.)

It is said that Mayor Willett lies buried in an humble graveyard in the town of Seekonk, at a place seldom visited by the footsteps of man; a plain monument marking the spot where his ashes repose.

THOMAS DELAVALL,

MAYOR IN 1666—71—78.

CAPTAIN DELAVALL became first known as a resident here after the capture by the English in 1664. He was then a Captain in the English service, and probably came with Col. Nichols as an officer of his forces; but it would seem that he had before that time been in America, as we find some transactions of his with the inhabitants, which took place prior to the year 1664. Captain Delavall immediately after the surrender of the place to the English, took a prominent part in the administration of the government, both in military and civil affairs. In the year 1666, he purchased a country seat of about 30 acres at Harlem, and soon after acquired the whole, or a great part, of Great Barn Island, (then called Barent's Island,) at Hell-gate. He afterward purchased about seven acres of land, upon which was a cherry orchard, near the present Franklin square; Cherry street derives its name from this orchard. The price paid for this land, which was sold at public auction, was 160 guilders (about 50 dollars.) Captain Delavall visited England in 1669, where he had a conference with the Duke of York, who sent by him, to the Mayor and Aldermen, a mace of the mayoralty office, and gowns for the Aldermen. In 1672, Captain Delavall purchased the former residence of Nicasius de Sille, an eminent man among the Dutch. This establishment, which consisted of a house, garden and orchard, was situated on the present east side of Broad street, corner of Exchange place. For this place he gave 3,000 guilders in sew-ant currency, equivalent to about 7 or 800 dollars of the present day. Captain Delavall engaged in mercantile pursuits and acquired considerable property in the province. He owned a mill and extensive landed interests at the Esopus (now Kingston.) He also owned shares in a mill and lands at Yonkers. He died in 1682, leaving one son, John Delavall. One of his daughters married William Dervall, afterward Mayor of this city, and a man of large property, who lived in the first style of those days. Another daughter married Mr. Codrington, a merchant. Captain Delavall was esteemed as a worthy and prudent man; he exercised a prominent part in the delicate duty of converting, by peaceable means, the prejudices and habits of the Dutch settlers into allegiance, and contented subservience to the rule of a government of foreign language and laws.

In the time of his mayoralty the city contained about 2,000 inhabitants.

CORNELIUS STEENWYCK.

MAYOR IN 1663-69-70-82-83.

THIS individual, some account of whom we have given in a former number of the Manual, among the Dutch magistrates, and whom we believe to have been the most influential citizen among the commonalty of his day, held several public offices after the accession of the English. Although a Dutchman, such was the confidence in his integrity held by the English, that soon after the capture of the place by the English, (viz., in 1671,) he was appointed by Lord Lovelace, during his temporary absence in Virginia, the Governor pro tem. of the province. Mr. Steenwyck spoke English tolerably well, but still with a notable Dutch accent. Those who have observed the present structure of English sentences by the descendants of the ancient Dutch, many of whom still people the counties of Ulster and Albany, and use the Dutch language in their families, and the English in their intercourse with strangers, will recognize the peculiarity of Mr. Steenwyck's speech on the occasion of a meeting of the inhabitants, called by the English Governor, soon after the taking of the place, (1663,) to learn the state of feeling among the citizens with regard to repairing the fortifications. Many of the people said the place was strong enough; others that they could not work until they had their arms restored to them, and others gave different excuses, while some were willing to contribute. Mr. Steenwyck said: "As the Governor has been pleased to put the Honorable Mayor and Aldermen for to look to the best of the town and the inhabitants of t'same, what they shall think fit and necessary for the best thereof, he being but ordered sal always be found a willing and faithful subject."

Mr. Steenwyck was a general merchant, or storekeeper, on the south-east corner of the present Bridge and Whitehall streets. He was a charitable and religious man; one of the principal supporters of the Dutch Church, to which he gave, at his death, the manor of Fordham for the maintenance of the ministers. He was the second in point of wealth in the province of New York, his property having been all acquired in his trade of merchant, and by the most scrupulous dealings.

His wife was Margaretta De Riemer, her mother originally named Greveraant, resided in this city. The latter was a worthy woman, and as Steenwyck himself was in early life without relatives in this country, his own respectable character was no doubt in some measure due to the counsels of his mother-in-law. The widow De Riemer afterward married Domine Samuel Drissius, one of the preachers of the Dutch Church. She survived the Domine, who died in 1689. Afterward she went by the common appellation of Mother Drissius until her death. She had no children by the Domine; but left several by her former husband.

It may be a matter of interest to know something of the domestic establishment of a prominent man in those early times. The property of Cornelius Steenwyck, on the corner of Bridge and Stone streets, consisted of an excellent stone house, occupied in part for his store and in part for his dwelling, it was worth from 4 to 5,000 dollars. Attached was a kitchen of two stories, and cellar. In the main house, connected with his kitchen, was the dwelling room, furnished with twelve rush leather chairs, two velvet chairs with fine silver lace, one cupboard of French nutwood, one round table, one square table, one cabinet, thirteen pictures, a large looking glass, a bedstead, containing two beds and the necessary linen, five alabaster images, a piece of tapestry work for cushions, a flowered tabby chimney cloth, a pair of flowered tabby window curtains (curtain calico,) a dressing box, a carpet.

In the "fore room" was a marble table with wooden frame, a table of wood, eleven pictures, seven Russia leather chairs, a carpet used for crumb cloth, three muslin curtains and a clock. The rest of the house was occupied by his merchandize.

Steenwyck died in 1684. His widow afterward married Domine Henricus Selinus, the Dutch preacher. In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained from 2 to 3,000 inhabitants.

MATTHIAS NICOLL,

MAYOR IN 1672.

THIS gentleman was descended of an ancient and honorable family at Islippe, Northamptonshire, Eng'land, and was, by profession, a lawyer. His father was a clergyman of the Episcopalian Church. It is said that he came to this country in the year 1660, but he does not appear to have taken an active interest in public affairs until after the capture of the country by the English, when he was appointed Secretary of the Province, and was the first who held that office under the English. He was also appointed to preside with the Justices of the different ridings in the Court of Sessions. In 1672, he was appointed by the Governor to the office of Mayor, which he held for one year. In 1683, he was appointed one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, in which capacity he officiated for the last time in Queens county September 12, 1687. He died at his residence, on Cow Neck, Long Island, December 22, 1687, where he and his wife, Abigail, are buried.

Mr. Nicoll is described as a man of strict integrity and high abilities. He purchased large tracts of land on Long Island. His son, William, commonly called the "Patentee," was born in England in 1657, and was educated to the bar. He became a prominent man in this country, and held several distinguished offices in the province. The descendants of the family are numerous on Long Island.

In the time of the mayoralty of Matthias Nicoll, the city contained about 2,500 inhabitants.

JOHN LAWRENCE,

MAYOR IN 1673, 1691.

JOHN LAWRENCE was an Englishman by birth, and one of three brothers who settled in this city, while it yet was under the domination of the Dutch. He was one of the six patentees of the town of Hempstead; and also, with others, received a grant of the present town of Flushing from Governor Kieft. He appears to have engaged in trade here about the year 1656, at which time he could not speak the Dutch language. He traded, as was customary, with several merchants of that day, along the coasts and rivers, where settlements had been established; but his principal transactions were up the North river, with Albany and Exopus, and with the New England settlements, on the Sound, and upon Long Island. His vessel, a small ship, was called the "Adventure." Mr. Lawrence established his residence in this city, on a street then called Hoogh street, his dwelling and store occupying the same premises, and facing the water on the present line of Pearl street, north side, between Hanover and Wall streets. No houses then occupied the opposite side of the street, which was the water line, and sided with planks, to prevent the washing of the road. The next above him, towards Wall street, was then one of the principal taverns in the city, kept by Annekin, widow of Daniel Litschoe.

Mr. Lawrence was called upon to take part in the government of the city and province soon after the capture by the English, and afterward was one of the principal official characters of his day. His wealth was considerable, principally invested in landed property.

Mr. Lawrence died in the year 1699, then over eighty years of age. By his wife, Susannah, who survived him, he had three sons and three daughters: Joseph, who died before him, leaving a daughter; John, who married Sarah, widow of Thomas Willett, first mayor of New York, and died without issue; Thomas, who died unmarried; Susannah, who married Gabriel Minvielle, once mayor of New York; Martha, who married Thomas Snawsell; and Mary, who married William Whittingham. There are therefore no lineal descendants of Mr. Lawrence, bearing his name.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 3,000 inhabitants.

WILLIAM DERVALL,

MAYOR IN 1675.

This gentleman was originally a Boston merchant, who had been somewhat interested in the trade with New Amsterdam, and, about the year 1667, removed here and engaged in trade. His brother John accompanied him, and they set up a store, principally of dry goods. William married a daughter of Thomas Delavall, (a wealthy citizen, who had been mayor of this city,) and occupied a house and store much finer than any which had before been in the city, in the vicinity of the present corner of Whitehall and Pearl streets. The stock of goods kept by Mr. Dervall, was superior in fashion and quality to what had been customary among the old fashioned Dutch merchants, and he had a prosperous competition with his brethren in trade. He acquired considerable wealth. He likewise inherited a handsome property from his father-in-law, among which was Great Barn Island, and a considerable estate in Harlem.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 3,000 inhabitants.

NICHOLAS DE MEYER,

MAYOR IN 1676.

MR. DE MEYER came to this city from Holland, to seek his fortune, while a youth. In 1655 he married Luda, daughter of Hendrick Van Dyck, who had been one of the chief officers of government, and then resided in Broadway, on the banks of the Hudson, some distance below Wall street. At De Meyer's wedding, as was customary among the Dutch, great entertainment was had. Mr. De Meyer's residence was on a road along the East river shore. It became known afterward as the Hoogh straat. The spot may be now pointed out on the northerly side of Stone street, nearly opposite Coenties alley. His premises ran through to a street, or road, in the rear, which was afterward commonly called the "Slygh Steegh," now South William street. In his day, he was counted among the leading men, in point of wealth and character. He was a schepen in 1664, alderman, 1669, 1670, 1675, assistant in 1685, and held various other offices of public trust.

Mr. De Meyer's trading operations were extensive, and connected with most of the settlements on the coast, and up the North river. He owned a considerable real estate in this city, near his place of residence; also, a farm at Harlem, and other interests in lands, mills, &c., in this province. He also held property in England and Holland. He died in 1690, leaving six children, viz., William, Henry, Anna Katrina, Deborah, (married to Thomas Crundall,) Elizabeth married Philip Schuyler, of New York, merchant. His son Henry, married Angenita Dekay, and died in 1692, leaving a young daughter, Lydia.

In the time of the mayoralty of Nicholas De Meyer, this city contained about 3,500 inhabitants.

STEPHANUS VAN CORTLAND,

MAYOR IN 1677, 1686, 1687.

THIS gentleman was a son of Oloff Stevenson Van Cortland, an ancient and conspicuous citizen of the early Dutch times. Stephanus Van Cortland was the first mayor of this city who had been born in America, the date of his birth being 7th May, 1613. His first step in public life was at an early age, in the year 1668, when he was appointed ensign of one of the militia companies of the city. In 1671 he married Geertruyd Schuyler, of Albany, and established his residence at the "Waterside," on the present line of Pearl street, near Broad, where he engaged in business as a merchant. His appointment as mayor, in 1677, at the age of thirty-four years, was a high compliment to his intelligence, and social position in the community, coming, as it did, from the English Governor. This favor, however, he returned, by remaining an adherent of the aristocratic party, in the time of the "revolution," or the Leisler affair. When Delanoy, the Leisler candidate, was elected to the mayoralty, in place of Van Cortland, the latter refused to deliver up the city seal. A committee waited on him at his residence, but his wife shut the door in their faces.

After the death of the venerable Oloff Stevenson Van Cortland, the large estate of that citizen placed all his children in comfortable circumstances. The division of the property was made in 1684, and soon after a part of the ancient homestead and brewery, in the "Brewer's," or Stone street, was sold to Anthony Lepinar, (or Lisenard,) who had formerly resided in Albany. Amongst the real estate owned by Mr. Van Cortland, was a field called "Claver Waytie," lying on south side of Maiden lane, and a large farm over the "fresh water" towards Corlears Hook. He likewise purchased, in 1671, a parcel of land through which the present Cortlandt street runs, on the west side of Broadway, (then a mere road.) This property was about two hundred and fifty feet front on the road, and extended down to the North river shore.

Stephanus Van Cortland continued an eminent man in the province until his death, which happened in 1701. His wife was then living, and also eleven children, viz, Johannes, or John, who, in 1695, had married Mary Van Schaick; Margaret, who, in the year 1700, had married Samuel Bayard; Ann, Olive, Mary, Philip, Stephanus, Gertrude, Elizabeth, Katharine, and Cornelia. He left a large estate, among the rest, the land afterward called Van Cortland Manor, near Peekskill. He acquired here two extensive tracts, one known by the Indian name Meanagh, consisting of the neck jutting into the river opposite Haverstraw, and just at the entrance of the Highlands; and another, called Appamapagh, upon a creek more inland.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained from 3,000 to 4,000 inhabitants.

FRANCOIS ROMBOUTS,

MAYOR IN 1679.

MR. ROMBOUTS was a Frenchman by birth, but emigrated, at an early age, to this city, where he established himself among the Dutch, and engaged in trade as a merchant, while yet a youth. In the year 1658, he enrolled himself among the burghers, or citizens, though he had been for several years previously a trader here. His trading operations as a merchant were tolerably extensive, though he did not rank among the wealthiest of the inhabitants. He was probably worth, as near as can be estimated, about ten thousand dollars, which was then, however, considered an independent fortune. Mr. Rombouts held several offices of trust among his fellow-citizens. In 1673, 1674, 1676, 1678, 1686, he was an Alderman. Afterward, in 1637, the city having been divided into wards, he was returned as Alderman of the West Ward. He afterward held the office of Justice of the Peace, until his death. His political principles were of a liberal character, and his manners and address grave and dignified.

Mr. Rombouts' dwelling was on Broadway, west side, near Rector street, extending to the North river shore. It embraced a large garden and an orchard.

His wife, Helena, was originally named Teller, but had been a second time a widow at the time of his marriage. Her own family, as well as those of her two former husbands, Bogardus and Van Bael, were of the most respectable class. Mr. Rombouts left one child—a daughter—who, at the time of his death, was a minor, but afterward married Roger Brett, a merchant of this city. The name of Rombouts thus became extinct in this city. Mr. Rombouts died in 1691. His widow survived him, and died in 1707.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 3,500 inhabitants.

WILLIAM DYRE,

MAYOR IN 1680.

MR. DYRE was an Englishman, and was at an early period a resident of one of the New England colonies, where he engaged in trade as a merchant. In the year 1653, at the time of the hostilities between England and Holland, Rhode Island fitted out an expedition against this city, which she placed under the command of Captain John Underhill, a distinguished military leader, and formerly an ally of the Dutch in the Indian war of 1642, and Captain William Dyre, the subject of this sketch, the former to command the land forces, and the latter the ships. The commissions issued to these officers cited the existence of a war between the mother countries, and also the tyrannous proceedings of their neighbors of New Netherland, and instructed the officers to bring the Dutch into subjection. This expedition, however, found the city of New Amsterdam so well prepared to receive them, that they stayed their journey thither, and captured the Fort Good Hope, on the Connecticut river, instead. Upon the final accession of English authority in this city, in 1674, Captain Dyre became a settler here, and held the office of Collector of Customs for a considerable period. His residence was on the easterly side of Broadway, a short distance above Wall street. He owned several acres between the latter street and Maiden lane, which he purchased from the inheritors of the old Damen farm. This property he sold to a gentleman of Philadelphia, named Lloyd, who realized a large profit by the rise in value of the property.

Captain Dyre removed from this city to Jamaica, (West Indies,) where he died about the year 1685.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 3,500 inhabitants.

GABRIEL MINVIELLE,

MAYOR IN 1684.

MR. MINVIELLE was a Frenchman by descent, but lived, in early life, in Amsterdam, Holland. In the year 1669, he established himself as a merchant in this city, and became engaged in trade with the West India Islands, and in other shipping interests. He married Susannah, a daughter of John Lawrence, a wealthy and conspicuous merchant of this city, who was also at one period Mayor of the city. He lived on Broadway, west side, in a fine mansion for those times, having a garden adjoining his house, fronting on the street. This was near the present Bowling Green, then a parade ground, in front of the fort.

Mr. Minvielle was an active politician, and was considered as a prominent aristocrat, taking part against Leisler's party in the exciting circumstances connected with what was called the "Rebellion." He was made a colonel of the militia, was a member of the Provincial Council, and Alderman of the city.

He died in 1702, leaving no children, and his name became extinct in this city. But, in Virginia, his brother, Pierre, who settled at Roanoke, has left numerous descendants.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 3,500 inhabitants.

NICHOLAS BAYARD,

MAYOR IN 1685.

MR. BAYARD was a public man from his youth. At the time the English took the city, in 1664, the City Council was composed of a court, called the "Burgomasters and Schepens," of which Johannes Nevins had been for a number of years secretary. But Mr. Nevins was not well acquainted with the English language, and, besides, held certain prejudices unfavorable to the English. In 1665, Bayard, then a youth, was appointed assistant to Nevins, with instructions to sit with him in the Court of Mayor and Aldermen, and to keep minutes in Dutch and English. About the 1st July, he was appointed secretary, Nevins having expressed his wish to retire. Bayard was soon afterward appointed to several lucrative offices, and likewise engaged in trade as a brewer and merchant, in which he soon acquired wealth.

Mr. Bayard established his residence on what was then called Hoagh straat, and may now be particularly pointed out on the present north side of Stone street, near Hanover square, his premises extending through to the street in the rear. This property he at first hired, about the year 1670, from Johannes Withart, but he afterward purchased the property for 2,700 guilders—equivalent to about $1,000. Mr. Bayard also purchased the property on the south-west corner of Stone and William streets. The latter was then called Burger Joris' path—afterward Burger's path. Burger Joris was an ancient citizen, a blacksmith, in the early Dutch times, and was the original grantee of property on this street. Mr. Bayard also purchased property north of what was then called the fresh water, (since the Kalek, from Kalek hook or the Lime-shell hill, which bordered one side of the pond.) That purchase, of about ten or twelve acres, was near the present commencement of the Bowery, and was parcel of the extensive property enjoyed by his descendants, called Bayard's Farm, extending above Canal street, between the Bowery and Macdougall street, south of Bleecker street.

In the time of Leisler's "Rebellion," Mr. Bayard was one of the most active and conspicuous opponents of that movement, and the affair took the turn of a deadly personal antipathy between the respective leaders. When Leisler was in power, he seized upon Bayard and imprisoned him with ignominious treatment; and when, finally, Leisler was overthrown, the councils of Bayard and one or two others led to the punishment of Leisler by death, upon a plea of treason. Bayard became the object of the vengeance of his opponents, but remained for some years in security, under the protection of a government favorable to his cause. But, about ten years afterward, an opportunity of retribution was furnished to his enemies. He had promoted several addresses to the King, the Parliament, and Lord Cornbury, which were subscribed at a tavern kept by Alderman Hutehins, in which the government of Bellemont, who favored the Leislerian party, was abused and slandered; and he further charged that the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Justice of the province had been bribed by the members of Assembly to favor their party. The government summoned Hutehins to deliver up the papers, which he refused, and was thrown into prison. Bayard and others sent an imprudent address to the Lieutenant-Governor, boldly justifying the legality of the address, and demanding Hutchins' discharge. There happened to have been, in an act relating to the sovereignty of this province, a clause containing these words:—

“Whatsoever person or persons shall, by any manner of ways, or upon any pretence whatsoever, endeavor, by force of arms or otherwise, to disturb the peace, good and quiet of their majesty's government, as it is now established, shall be deemed and esteemed as rebels and traitors unto their majesties, and incur the pains, penalties and forfeitures, as the laws of England have for such offences made and provided.”

Under the pretext of this law, which Bayard himself had been personally concerned in enacting, he was committed to jail as a traitor, and, lest the mob should interpose, a company of soldiers, for a week after, guarded the prison.

He was brought to trial in February, 1702, and convicted of high treason. Several reasons were afterward offered in arrest of judgment, but, as the prisoner was in the hands of an enraged party, they were overruled, and he was condemned to death on the 16th of March. Bayard applied for a reprieve till his majesty's pleasure might be known, and obtained it, not without great difficulty, nor till after a seeming confession of guilt was extorted. Eventually, upon the accession of his own party to the government, Mr. Bayard was set at liberty.

Mr. Bayard died in the year 1711, leaving his widow, Judy, alive. His son, Samuel, inherited his extensive property.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 3,500 inhabitants.

Mrs. Stuyvesant, the wife of the Governor, was a Bayard, and a cousin of the subject of this sketch. The Governor, after the accession of the English, resided on his farm at the Bowery. Petrus Bayard, who married a daughter of Mrs. Rombouts, by a former husband, (Van Bail,) lived on the present line of Pearl, near Broad street. Balthazar Bayard, a brewer, lived on Broadway, west side, near the Bowling Green; he married a daughter of Govert Loochemans, a very wealthy Dutch merchant. Mrs. Blaudina Bayard lived on the north-east corner of Broadway and Exchange place.

PIETER DELANOY,

MAYOR IN 1688-1689.

This gentleman, whose Mayoralty occupied the successful period of Leisler's "Rebellion," and who was one of the most conspicuous partisans of that leader, was one of two brothers, who emigrated to this city, from Holland, in the times of the Dutch. The eldest, Abraham, came here, it is supposed, in 1651, bringing with him a considerable stock of goods shipped, on part venture, by Jacob Verplanck, a merchant of the mother country. He set up a store here, and prosecuted business for several years, and likewise kept school. He died in 1702, leaving a property of about $10,000.

Pieter Delanoy, following the path of his brother, is found, in 1656, to have become established in trade here. In 1680, he purchased the property, formerly of Isaac Bedlow, an eminent merchant, then occupied by Captain Dyre, Collector of the Port, situated near the present corner of Whitehall and Pearl streets.

The affair of Leisler's so-called usurpation happened in 1688, and, as it was a revolution based upon a great political principle, but local in its nature, the opposing actors and the scene of action being in this city, then a small town, of three or four thousand inhabitants, it may readily be imagined that the people of New York then saw such exciting days as it falls to the lot of few places of that size to witness. Those were the times when the great battle between Protestantism and Roman Catholicism was going on throughout the Christian world. The great dignitaries of Church and State were in active commotion. At one time, by the dispensation of Providence, a prince of one creed would be called from the scene, and an heir of an opposite creed would succeed to his place. The great machinery of government would be suddenly reversed, and, amidst the upheavings of the people, the whole policy of Church and State would be changed.

James I, a Catholic, had ascended the English throne, and appointed Catholic officers in many of the important political stations. Among others, Dongan was appointed Governor of New York, but the people here were, by a great majority, opposed to the government. The exceptions were a few conspicuous and wealthy men, who, although equally Protestant in their religious creed, nevertheless held offices, or were connected with government in some way, and were consequently in some degree committed to conservatism. It was evident that the people of England were opposed to the government of King James; and the fact being apparent that the next Protestant heir to the throne would receive the support of the people, Mary, who had married William, Prince of Orange, was the person looked to for a movement, and, in 1688, William and Mary, with a large force, landed upon the English coasts.

It was not known here for some time whether the attempt of William and Mary had been successful, but the people took fire at hearing the news of their landing in England, and Dongan, the Governor of this province, suddenly left the country. The command then devolved upon Nicholson, the Lieutenant-Governor, but he did not choose to assume the responsibility of the government, and took a sort of uncommitted position and resided at a hotel in town, instead of in the fort.

The people, however, were now decided, and finding the fort left without a garrison, proceeded to keep guard there themselves, there being then three or four militia companies in town, which had been organized for many years. They had always been commanded by citizens of wealth and standing, and were at the present time officered by Captain De Peyster, Captain Leisler, and another.

Leisler was the oldest of these, and was one of the most respectable and wealthy merchants of the place. After some time passing in this way, by the companies keeping alternate possession of the fort, it became evident that the affairs of the province would be seriously injured unless some form of government was established; and it was resolved, among the citizens, to request Leisler to conduct the government until the question to the English throne should be settled, and a legitimate government should be re-established in this province. Leisler accepted this trust, and, by so doing, became the mark of those of his neighbors who, having before constituted the Council, or third branch of the government, considered themselves as the legitimate inheritors of the reins of government. This was probably true in point of fact, but the people wished to have William and Mary acknowledged at once, and the Council would not commit themselves, (although the members were favorable to their cause,) until more definite news had been heard. Leisler, however, immediately proclaimed the new king and queen, and conducted the government in their name.

We do not propose to give any account of the subsequent transactions connected with this affair, which resulted so tragically for Leisler and his son-in-law, further than to say that two parties, whose embittered feelings bore the utmost intensity of personal hatred, grew up in this city, and that Pieter Delanoy, a partisan of Leisler, received the popular support for Mayor, by a very great majority, for the years 1688 and 1689. He was the first Mayor of this city elected by the people.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 3,500 inhabitants.

ABRAHAM DE PEYSTER.

MAYOR in 1691-2, 3.

THE father of this gentleman, and the ancestor of the family of that name in this country, was named Johannes De Peyster. He was one of the principal merchants, and a leading citizen in the times of the Dutch. He was originally established in business near the fort, on what was then called the Winckel street, but removed in 1669 to the east side of Broad street, between the present Beaver and South William streets. He was for several years Schepen of the city, and was also a prominent officer of the Dutch Church. He held office in the City Councils after the accession of the English, and in 1677 was appointed Deputy Mayor, which office, however, he found himself unable to fill, on account of his inadequate knowledge of the English language, and he therefore resigned. He died a few years subsequent, leaving his widow, Cornelia, surviving, and several children. He had four sons—Abraham, Isaac, Johannes and Cornelius, and an only daughter, who had married John Spratt, a merchant; after the death of Mr. Spratt, she married Captain David Provoost, who was at one period Mayor of this city.

Two sons of Johannes De Peyster filled the office of Mayor of this city, viz.: Abraham, (the subject of this sketch,) and Johannes, a younger brother.

Abraham De Peyster was a merchant. He was conspicuous among the active men of his day as a friend of Leisler. He was a captain of one of the train band companies of the city, Leisler holding the same command in another company, at the time of the revolution in England, which placed the Protestant succession on the throne, and was thus brought into a prominent position in the troubles of that period. He was subsequently Colonel of the New York regiment. He acquired a large estate, and ranked among the wealthy citizens of his day.

Mr. De Peyster was, for a considerable period, Treasurer of the Colony. His ill state of health, however, in the latter years of his life, unfitted him for business, and his extensive business concerns were generally managed by his son Abraham, who received the appointment of Treasurer in place of his father, in 1721.

The domestic establishment of Col. De Peyster was conducted on an extensive scale. His household consisted in 1703, of three grown-up white persons and four children, five male negroes, two female negroes, and two negro children.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 4,000 inhabitants.

CHARLES LODOWICK,

MAYOR IN 1694.

MR. LODOWICK was a son of a ship captain, who had traded out of this port under the Dutch administration. He was a merchant in good standing; his trade extending to all the foreign ports then in commercial intercourse with this city. Being one of the captains of the city militia in the time of the troubles arising out of the revolution in England, he became an active participant in the exciting scenes of those days. The Governor (Dongan) having left the country, it was resolved by the citizens that the militia companies should, in turn, hold possession of the fort. Colonel Bayard, who commanded the regiment, was in the interest of the government, and endeavored to counteract this scheme, thus concerted among the captains. Accordingly, while the company of Lodowick was parading on the green in front of the fort, (now Bowling Green,) the Colonel appeared among them and commanded them to disperse, but his authority was set at naught, and he himself ordered to depart. Captain Lodowick sent his sergeant, with a file of men, to demand the keys from Lieutenant Governor Nicholson, whose quarters were at a tavern; but they found him with his council at the City Hall, to which place Bayard also had returned. Nicholson refused to deliver the keys to the sergeant; upon which Lodowick marched to the City Hall, and the Lieutenant Governor was compelled to deliver him up the keys. Thus was acquired possession of the fort, and a virtual revolution in the government accomplished. The tragical result of this affair to Leisler, one of the coadjutors of Lodowick, is well known.

After these troubles had reached their end, Lodowick still maintained a popular position in the community. He rose to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, which he held at the time of his appointment to the mayoralty.

He subsequently removed to England, where he died.

In the time of his administration the city contained about 4,000 inhabitants.

WILLIAM MERRITT,

MAYOR IN 1695-6-7.

WILLIAM MERRITT came to this city in the occupation of a mariner, about the year 1671, then a young man, at which period he purchased a house and lot on the present Broad street, (then the "Heere graft,") west side, between Stone and Marketfield streets. He engaged in trade in this city, and acquired considerable property. At the time of Leisler's government, he was an active politician of the opposite party. He was elected a Common Councilman or Assistant Alderman in 1683. He owned a considerable tract of land near the present Chatham square, then in the Out Ward, part of which he afterward sold to William Janeway. Mr. Merritt was elected Alderman of the Out Ward in 1687. Subsequently removing to the lower part of the city, he was elected Alderman of the Dock Ward in 1691. In 1695, 6 and 7, he held the office of Mayor. His residence in the Dock Ward was in one of the best houses in town, and he was rated among the wealthy men of the day. In the time of his mayoralty, the Leisler commotion having somewhat subsided, the most exciting subject of public interest was the progress of the war with the French and Indians, which then raged in the interior of the province and on the Canada borders. The barbarities practiced in those times between the belligerent parties exceed belief. An account of the process of torture exercised upon an unfortunate prisoner who had fallen into the hands of the enemy, is here given from an authentic source, to illustrate the condition of the mind in that era of our history. "The prisoner being first made fast to a stake, so as to have room to move round, a Frenchman began the horrid tragedy, by broiling the flesh of the prisoner's legs from his toes to his knees, with the red hot barrel of a gun. His example was followed by an Utawawa, who, being desirous to outdo the French in their refined cruelty, split a furrow from the prisoner's shoulder to his garter, and filling it with gunpowder, set fire to it. This gave him exquisite pain, and raised excessive laughter in his tormenters. When they found his throat so much parched that he was no longer able to gratify their ears with his howling, they gave him water to enable him to continue their pleasure longer. But at last, his strength failing, an Utawawa flayed off his scalp, and then threw burning hot coals on his skull. Then they untied him, and bid him run for his life. He began to run, tumbling like a drunken man. They shut up the way to the east, and made him run to the westward, the country, as they think, of departed miserable souls. He had still force left to throw stones, till they put an end to his misery by knocking him on the head. After this, every one cut a slice from his body, to conclude the tragedy with a feast."

In the time of the mayoralty of Mr. Merritt, the city contained about 4,000 inhabitants.

JOHANNES DE PEYSTER,

MAYOR IN 1693.

WE have given some account of the family of this name under the sketch of the brother of this gentleman—Colonel Abraham De Peyster, Mayor in 1691, &c.—to which we refer the reader. The subject of the present sketch married a daughter of Gerrit Bancker, a prominent Indian trader and fur dealer, resident at Albany. The widow of Gerrit Bancker died in 1693, she having previously moved to this city. Among the peltry and skins on hand at the time of her death, were one hundred and three beavers, eighteen otters, eight minks, two wild cats, eighteen water rats, nine gray squirrels, one red squirrel, seven bear skins, one wolf skin. Mr. Bancker had one of the best private libraries then in the country, containing about thirty volumes, consisting of the following works, and others of similar character: one Bible, with silver clasp, two Dutch Bibles, one other small Bible with silver clasp, one New Testament, with silver clasp, two catechisms, one Isaac Ambrosius, one House Wifery, one Horin's Church History, one "Flock of Israel," (French,) one Coelman's Christian's Interest, three volumes "Christ's Way and Works," one De Witts' Catechism, two Duy Kern's Church History, one Cudemans on Holiness, &c.

Mr. Johannes De Peyster was a merchant, residing in the Dock Ward, which he represented as Assistant Alderman in 1694-5. He was appointed Mayor in 1693, and in the course of his life held various other prominent offices. He died about the year 1719.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 4,000 inhabitants.

DAVID PROVOOST,

MAYOR IN 1699.

THIS gentleman was a son of David Provoost, who, at a very early period, came to this city as a clerk in the service of the West India Company. Previous to the year 1639, a grant had been made to David Provoost, sr., of a considerable parcel of land on the present west side of Pearl street, near Fulton street, where he resided for some time, and afterward removed to Long Island. He never amassed any considerable property, but brought up a large family in respectable circumstances, and his descendants were distinguished for intelligence, and became wealthy proprietors. He was himself a man of education, understood the English language, and had a good knowledge of the formalities of legal instruments. He died in 1656, leaving his widow surviving, named Margaret, (born Jellisan or Gillison,) and several children.

David Provoost, the subject of this sketch, commenced trade as a merchant about the year 1666. He married a daughter of Johannes De Peyster, an eminent merchant. The lady had previously been married to John Spratt, also a merchant of this city. Mr. Provoost resided, at one period, on the present line of Pearl street, it is supposed in the original homestead of his father. He subsequently removed to the lower part of the city. He was Alderman of the Dock Ward in 1697, and was appointed Mayor in 1699. His son, David Provoost, jr., was Alderman of the West Ward for several years, and was an eminent merchant. The latter died in 1724.

In the time of the mayoralty of Mr. Provoost, the city contained about 4,000 inhabitants.

ISAAC DE RIEMER.

MAYOR IN 1700.

Mr. DE RIEMER, was a merchant, and a member of an old family of this city. His grandmother was born Elizabeth Grevenraat, and married the common ancestor of the De Riemers in this country, by whom she was left a widow with four children. Her daughter, Margaret, married Cornelius Steenwyck, an eminent merchant; another daughter, Maghtelt, married, first, Nicholas Gouverneur, and afterward, Jasper Nessepot, a baker. Her son, Peter, was a glazier, long a resident of this city; and her son, Hubert, the father of the gentleman whose name heads this article, followed the profession of a naval surgeon. He married a respectable lady of this city by whom he had two children, Isaac and Elizabeth. The latter married, in 1701, Henry Coerten, a merchant. Isaac De Riemer married, in early life, a daughter of William Teller, a prominent and wealthy merchant of this city. Subsequent to his mayoralty, he held several offices of a more subordinate character. He was chosen Collector of the South Ward in 1706. For the subsequent year he was chosen Alderman. In 1708 he was elected constable. He shortly after removed out of town, his residence being upon a hill, south of Canal street, between Broadway and the North river. In 1714 he contested the election for Alderman of the Out Ward with Mr. Blagge, who received the return. Mr. De Riemer was admitted to his seat.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 4,200 inhabitants.

 THOMAS NOELL,

MAYOR IN 1701.

Mr. NOELL was a merchant in this city, who had commenced his clerkship while a youth, with a large mercantile house, and afterward established himself in business, acquiring a considerable fortune. The period of his administration was at a time when the utmost feeling existed between the ancient parties of "Leislerian" and "anti-Leislerian." The former had been in power under the administration of the Earl of Bellamont, who favored their cause; but that nobleman dying in the spring of 1701, Mr. Nanfan, the Lieut. Governor, took his place, and in October appointed Mr. Noell, who favored the anti-Leislerians, mayor, in place of Mr. De Riemer, who was of the opposite party.

At the election for members of the Common Council in October, 1701; the vote was very close. The Common Council was composed of the Mayor, Recorder, six Aldermen and six Assistants. If the vote in the Common Council were equal, the Mayor had a casting vote. Mr. Noell, the Mayor-elect was, an "anti-Leislerian," while the Recorder, Mr. Abraham Gouverneur was a "Leislerian." The strife to gain a majority of the Common Council was very severe, and the votes in some of the wards very close. There were six wards, and as the Aldermen made the returns of the election, every Alderman returned the candidate of his own party elected. Three of these returns were undisputed, viz :

Dock Ward—Philip French, Alderman, and Robert Lurting, Assistant, anti-Leislerian.

Out Ward—Martin Clock, Alderman, and Abraham Messier, Assistant, "Leislerian."

North Ward—Jacob Boelen, Alderman, and Gerrit Onelebeg, Assistant, "Leislerian."

The Aldermen of the other three wards, who were of the "Leislerian" party, returned themselves as re-elected, viz :—Johannes De Peyster, Alderman, and Abraham Brasier, Assistant, of the East Ward; David Provoost, Alderman, and Peter William Roome, Assistant, West Ward; Nicholas Roosevelt, Alderman, and Hendrich Jallisen, Assistant, South Ward; and it being apparent from the close and perhaps doubtful nature of the returns, that the new Mayor, who was of the opposite faction, would not swear them in; they departed from the usual course, and procured themselves to be sworn by the old Mayor before his successor was installed.

On the usual day for initiating the mayor and members of the Common Council, 14th October, 1702, Mr. Noell was, as usual, sworn before the Governor and Council in the Fort, and thence proceeded with the customary solemnities to Trinity Church, where an appropriate sermon was preached for the occasion, by the Rev. Mr. Vesey. From thence, attended by the Recorder, and the several Aldermen and Assistants, disputants, as well as others, he proceeded to the City Hall, and after the ringing of three bells published his commission; afterward took the chair, when Isaac De Riemer, the late mayor, presented him with the city charter and seal. Mr. Gouverneur, the Recorder then placed himself on the bench, at the side of the Mayor, as did also Messrs. De Peyster, Provoost, Roosevelt, Boelen and Clock, and their assistants, who had all been sworn by the old mayor. Mayor Noell then ordered the clerk, Mr. Sharpas, to proceed in swearing the members elect, and he called those who had the returns. They all replied, however, that they had been already sworn, except French and Lurting of the South Ward, to whom alone the oath was administered by Mr. Noell. Upon that there were writs of mandamus handed to the Mayor, issued out of the Supreme Court, commanding him to swear Brandt Schuyler, Alderman, and Johannes Jansen, Assistant, of the South Ward; John Hutchins, Alderman, and Robert White, Assistant, of the West Ward, and William Morris, Alderman, and Jeremiah Tut-hill, Assistant, of the East Ward. Upon the reading of one of these in the court room, there being many citizens present, great disputes arose; some affirming that the members were not legally sworn by the old mayor and that they had illegally returned themselves; others maintaining the contrary. Great heats arose, and the Mayor thought proper to leave the chair and dissolve the assembly to avert a collision, which seemed to be impending, upon which the multitude dispersed.

As all the Leislerian party had refused to be sworn by Mr. Nocell, he refused to sit with them as a Common Council; and as there could not legally be a scrutiny of the disputed elections, except by order of the Common Council, it was apparent that the city would be without a government, unless some other measures were taken. Mr. Nocell took it upon himself to order a scrutiny of the elections in the several wards, and appointed four persons in each ward, two of each party, to conduct the investigation. The "Leislerians," however, refused to serve, and their party refused to recognize or take any part whatever in a scrutiny thus ordered, maintaining that it was wholly irregular, the Common Council alone being the judges of the qualifications of its members. But the persons of the "Anti-Leislerian" party, who had been appointed for the scrutiny of the votes, proceeded to their labor, and reported the state of the several polls to have been as follows:

Mr. Noell proceeded on the 11th November to swear in Messrs. Schuyler, Hutchins and Morris, and their Assistants. He left his house attended by those gentlemen and Alderman French. When they came to the City Hall, Messrs. De Peyster, Provoost, Roosevelt and Clock joined him, and went with him into the Court room, and placed themselves on the bench of magistracy with him. Mr. Noell insisted that they had no right to sit there, but stated that he should not offer violence to remove them. He then proceeded to swear in the other members; upon which, those on the bench protested loudly against such proceeding; nevertheless the clerk administered the oaths amid the uproar, and the newly sworn members took their seats on the bench, and the whole twenty were sitting there together all determined to take part in the transaction of business, if any thing were done. The Mayor then adjourned the Board for a fortnight.

On the 23d December, the Common Council was finally organized in consequence of the judgment of the Supreme Court, which gave seats to Schuyler and Hutchins and their Assistants of the anti-Leislerian party, and to De Peyster and his Assistant of the Leislerian party; so that the Board stood equally divided between the two parties.

Mr. Noell died in the autumn of the following year, 1702, of an epidemic prevailing here, brought hither in a vessel from the West Indies. It was commonly known in after years as the "great sickness." He left a considerable property, but no children. He owned a very extensive farm at Bergen, New Jersey, stocked with twelve negroes, thirty-four neat beasts, fourteen horses, and other stock in proportion.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 4,300 inhabitants.

PHILIP FRENCH,

MAYOR IN 1702.

THIS gentleman was originally from Kelshall, Suffolk county, England, where his family held considerable landed property. He engaged in business as a merchant, and established himself in this city, between which and England he principally carried on trade. His brother, Captain John French, for a considerable period commanded a merchant ship, and afterward settled his family in this city, his residence being in the lower part of Broadway, near the Bowling Green.

Philip French married in this city, Anneken, daughter of Frederick Philipse, the richest man in this country. Mr. Philipse was a poor man in the outset of his career, but having married the widow of a Dutch trader, he managed the property, left by his predecessor, in such a prudent manner as to leave an estate of something over a hundred thousand dollars at the time of his death, which occurred in 1702. The eldest son of Mr. Philipse, named Philip, resided for a time at Barbadoes. He died, leaving a son, Frederick Philipse, jr. The other children of Frederick Philipse were Adolphus and Eva, the latter married Jacobus Van Cortland.

Philip French, resided near the corner of Broad street and Exchange place; his household consisting of himself, wife and children, and seven slaves. He was distinguished as a violent opponent of the Leislerian party, and was, in 1702, outlawed by government for promoting an incendiary address to Parliament. On the same occasion, one of his associates, Nicholas Bayard, was tried for treason, convicted and sentenced for execution, but the sentence was not carried into effect. Mr. French, upon the arrest of Bayard, absconded, and did not return until the arrival of a governor more favorable to his party. This event took place in the course of a few months; and the political scale having thus become reversed, Mr. French was carried into the mayoralty, which he held for part of one year. Having occasion to visit England on business of importance, he gave up the city charter and seals to the Recorder (Mr. Broughton,) in July, 1703.

He died in the year 1707, leaving three children, all daughters, viz: Elizabeth, Ann and Margaret. His name therefore is not known among his descendants.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 4,400 inhabitants.

WILLIAM PEARTREE,

MAYOR IN 1703-4-5-6.

MR. PEARTREE, like several others of the principal men of those times, came to this city in the merchant service, and finding an opening here for profitable trade established himself as a merchant. He resided in Beaver street, north side, between New street and Broadway, where he had a large garden. He came hither from Jamaica, where he had been trading, and where he held a considerable property. His shipping business was principally between this port and the West India Islands. It was in the time of Mr. Peartree's mayoralty that fortifications were first erected at the Narrows, the principal incentive being the entrance of a French privateer within the harbor, which put the whole city in consternation.

In 1705, Col. Peartree, then Mayor, was intrusted with the command of an expedition, consisting of a brigantine and two sloops, fitted out by several of the principal shipping merchants of the city, to cruise after a certain French privateer which had been depredating upon merchant vessels bound for this port. Col. Peartree died in 1714, leaving no male descendants. His daughter Francis married William Smith, an eminent merchant.

He resided, at the time of his mayoralty, in Broadway; his family establishment being conducted in hospitable style. Himself, wife and child constituted the white portion of the establishment. Two male negroes, two female negroes and two negro children making up the household.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 4,500 inhabitants.

EBENEZER WILSON,

MAYOR IN 1707-8-9.

This gentleman was a son of Mr. Samuel Wilson, who came to this city soon after the English came into possession of the country. He engaged in trade here as a merchant, and owned considerable property near the present foot of Wall street, then occupied by slaughter houses. He built a fine residence facing the city wall, and situated on the present south side of Wall street, near Pearl street. He was a man of some note in the city politics of that day, and was for several years a member of the Common Council. He died in 1689, leaving two sons, Joseph and Ebenezer, the former resided out of the city, and was a miller.

Ebenezer Wilson continued his father's business, and soon took part in public affairs in this city. He was Assistant of the East Ward for several years, and held other various offices of trust. During part of the time of Mr. Wilson's mayoralty, Lord Cornbury was the Governor of the Province, a man universally despised for his trifling, mean and extravagant behavior. It was not uncommon for him to dress himself in a woman's habit and then to patrol the fort in which he resided. He was removed from the government in 1703, and being indebted to many tradesmen in the town in small sums which he would not pay, he was taken by the Sheriff, and kept here until the death of his father, Earl Clarendon, when succeeding to that title he returned to England. Mr. Wilson was Sheriff of this city during several years, and during his life was an active and prominent citizen and politician.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 5,000 inhabitants.

JACOBUS VAN CORTLAND,

MAYOR IN 1710, 1719.

This gentleman was the second son of Oloff Stevenson Van Cortland, and a brother of Stephanus Van Cortland, Mayor in 1677, 1686 and 1687.

He was born on the 7th July, 1668, and married, in 1691, Eva Philipse, a daughter of Frederick Philipse, the wealthiest citizen of his day. By deeds from his father-in-law and others, he became proprietor of the "Lower Younkers" plantation, a large estate near the present village of Yonkers, Westchester county. Mr. Van Cortland was a merchant in the city of New York, residing, however, at certain periods, on his estate in the country. In 1691, he represented the city in the Colonial Assembly. He died in the year 1739, and by his will bequeathed to his son Frederick his estate in Westchester.

The children of Mr. Van Cortland were Frederick, who married Francis, daughter of the Huguenot, Augustus Jay; Margaret married Abraham De Peyster; Ann married John Chambers; and Mary married Peter Jay.

In the time of the mayoralty of Mr. Van Cortland, the city contained about 5,500 inhabitants.

CALEB HEATHCOTT,

MAYOR IN 1711-12-13.

THE first of the family of Heathcotts in this city, was George Heathcott, a merchant and ship master, who claimed his residence in Ratcliff, parish of Stepney, county of Middlesex, England. He was interested in trade in Jamaica, and came here soon after the final accession of England to the government—about 1674 or 5. He carried on trade here on a large scale, was immediately classed among the principal merchants, and purchased a place for his residence on the present line of Pearl street, north side, the present Pine street running through a part of the property. His nephew, or cousin, Caleb Heathcott, came here in 1692, and became concerned in business with him. Mr. George Heathcott, after a long residence here, removed to Bucks county, Pennsylvania, where he died in the year 1710, leaving the bulk of his property to his relative in this city.

Caleb Heathcott, it is stated, was a son of a man of fortune in England, the Mayor of Chester. He had formed a matrimonial engagement with a lady, to whom he introduced his eldest brother, named Gilbert. The latter conceived an attachment for the lady and made overtures of marriage on his own behalf, which were favorably received, and the younger brother was discarded. The latter then exiled himself and became a resident of this city in the family of George Heathcott. He afterward married Martha, daughter of Mr. Smith, of Long Island, a man of considerable note, who had been Governor of Tangier, and hence was known as "Tangier Smith," to distinguish him from others of the same Christian patronymic as himself.

Mr. Heathcott was in the same year of his arrival appointed a member of the Governor's Council, and afterward took a prominent part in the affairs of the Colony. His brother, meanwhile, who had supplanted him in the affections of the English lady, became a conspicuous man of wealth in the mother country, and was the first Governor of the Bank of England.

Caleb Heathcott, on retiring from active business, removed to a country seat at Mamaroneck, Westchester county, where he built an elegant mansion, known as Heathcott Hall. He owned there a large tract purchased of Ann Riebell, running 18 miles in length. In addition to his own wealth, acquired in trade and by inheritance, he received a legacy from one of his brothers (William) in England—about ten thousand pounds. Caleb Heathcott died in the year 1721, leaving two sons, Gilbert and William, and four daughters, Ann, Mary, Martha and Elizabeth, who came into possession of his large estate.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 5,500 inhabitants.

JOHN JOHNSTON,

MAYOR IN 1714-15-16-17-18.

MR. JOHNSTON was a merchant engaged in the foreign trade. In 1718, while Mayor, a vessel belonging to him, bound with cargo from the island of Curacao to New York, was taken on the high seas by a Spanish vessel and carried into St. Juan de Porto Rico. He was a member of the Government Council in 1718.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 6,500 inhabitants.

ROBERT WALTERS,

MAYOR IN 1720-1-2-3-4.

THIS gentleman commenced business in this city when a young man, and married, it is said, a daughter of Jacob Leisler. The property of Mr. Leisler was confiscated after his execution for treason, but was subsequently restored by act of Parliament. This property was extensive, and placed the various members of the family in easy circumstances. Captain Walters was an active man in the city, during many years filling the highest offices subordinate to the Executive of the province. He was a member of Governor Burnet's Council in 1720 and subsequent years, and of Governor Montgomery's Council in 1728, &c.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 7,000 inhabitants.

JOHANNES JANSEN,

MAYOR IN 1725.

THE name of Jansen was the most numerous in the ancient city of New Amsterdam, insomuch that it was customary to distinguish the different heads of families by soubriquets, or aliases, by which in after times they became commonly known, and which were adopted as the patronymic of the family in succeeding generations. The family of this gentleman, however, retained their ancestral name.

Mr. Jansen was a merchant residing in the South Ward of the city, which he represented as Alderman in the years 1704-5-6-13-14-15-16-17 and 18.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 7,500 inhabitants.

ROBERT LURTING,

MAYOR IN 1726-7-8-9-30-1-2-3-4.

MR. LURTING was the first of his name in this city; he came here while a young man, towards the close of the 17th century. He married Dorcas, the widow of Richard Jones, a merchant of this city, by which marriage he acquired a considerable property. He engaged at first in slooping on the adjacent rivers, and afterward in an extensive foreign trade. Mr. Lurting was an active and prominent man in the community. In 1709, being a Captain in one of the city militia companies, he was appointed one of the Commissioners for managing the Commissary Department of the expedition against the French in Canada, then in course of preparation. In 1698, he was Assistant of the South Ward. In 1701 and 2, he was Assistant of the Dock Ward. In 1704 and 5, he was Alderman of the Dock Ward. In 1709, he was Alderman of the East Ward. He filled the station of Vendue-master for many years. Mr. Lurting held the office of Mayor from the time of his appointment, in 1726, until his death, which occurred after a sickness of two or three months, on the 3d July, 1735.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 8,000 inhabitants.

PAUL RICHARD,

MAYOR IN 1735-6-7-8.

THE ancestor of this gentleman, Paulus Richard, came to this country shortly previous to the first English occupation, in 1664. He was of French birth, his father at that time residing in France, but having some commercial relations with Holland, which probably led to the settling of his son, then a youth, in this province. He engaged in mercantile trade on the present north side of Pearl street, between Whitehall and Broad streets, his store then fronting to the water. He was successful in business, and within two or three years purchased the property in question. He lived to an advanced age, having held various offices of trust in the community, and died the possessor of considerable wealth. His son, Stephen, became a prominent merchant; he married a daughter of Johannes Van Brugh, one of the wealthiest citizens of the old Dutch times. From him was descended the subject of this sketch, who was also a merchant of high standing. Mr. Richard was first appointed Mayor to supply the vacancy occasioned by the death of Mr. Robert Lurting, receiving his appointment on the 4th July, 1735, and held during the three following years.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 10,000 inhabitants.

JOHN CRUGER,

MAYOR IN 1739-40-1-2-3.

MR. CRUGER commenced his business operations in this city at an early age. In 1693, then a mere youth, he was employed by the owners of a ship called the "Prophet Daniel," Captain Appel, to go as supercargo or trader to procure, on the African coast, a cargo of slaves; as the adventures of the expedition are interesting and instructive, we shall transcribe Mr. Cruger's report of his misfortunes, as rendered to his employers on his return:

"New York, Friday, 15th July, 1693, we weighed anchor bound for the island of Don Mascarona; 3d October, found ourselves under the island of St. Thomas, went in to water and clean the ship; 4th October, Captain Appel came on board and told me he would not go on board again before some of the people were out of the ship, and that I must find some way to pay their wages, so that I was forced to sell some rigging for said use, before Captain Appel would come on board; he left one man at said place called Whiter, a very troublesome fellow ; 7th October, sailed from St. Thomas ; 20th February, 1699, Captain and Master judged themselves to leeward of the island Don Maseowrena ; Sunday, 13th July, we arrived at Mattatana, (whither we had been compelled to turn our course,) and I went on shore to trade for negroes, but the harbor proving bad we were forced to remove from that place—I having purchased 50 slaves at St. Mattatana ; 24th August, arrived at Fort Dolphin ; 27th do., I acquainted Mr. Abraham Samuel, the king of that place, of my arrival, and came with him to a trade ; 12th September, I went with Mr. Samuel twenty-five miles up in the country, and on the 14th in the morning, I got the miserable news that our ship was taken by a vessel that came into the harbour the night before. Whereupon I made all the haste down I could, when we got some of the subjects of Mr. Samuel to assist us, and we fired upon said pirate for two days, but could do no good. Then I hired two men to swim off in the night to cut their cables, but Mr. Samuel charged them not to meddle with them, (as I was informed, said Samuel having got a letter from on board the said pirates in which I suppose they made great promises, so that he forbid us upon our lives not to meddle with any of said pirates. When said ship came in at an anchor they desired our boat to give them a cast on shore, they having lost their boats, and pretended to be a merchant ship and had about 50 negroes on board. At night, said Captain of said ship desired that our boat might give him a cast on board of his ship, which was done, and coming on board he desired the men to drink with him, and when said men were going on board of our ship again they stopped them by violence, and at about 9 at night, they manned the boat and took our ship, and presently carried away all the money that was on board, rigging, and other things that they had occasion for, and then gave the ship and negroes, and other things that were on board to said Mr. Samuel. The Captain's name of the pirate was Evan Jones ; Robert Moore, master ; John Dodde, quarter master ; John Spratt, boatswain ; Thomas Cullins, Robin Hunt, from Westchester, New York, and others. Mr. Abraham Samuel took likewise away from me 22 casks of powder and 49 small arms, likewise all the sails belonging to the Prophet which were on shore, and then sold the ship again to Isaac Ruff, Thomas Welles, Edmd. Conklin and Edward Woodman, as it was reported, for 1,400 pieces of eight. The purchasers designed to go from Fort Dolphin to the island of Don Maseowrena, and thence to Mattatana upon Madagascar, and so for America.

“ Captain Henry Appel, Jacobus Meener and Isaac Sommers went along with them ; some days after there arrived at Fort Dolphin a small pinke, called the Vine, Thomas Warrent, master, from London, which took in slaves from said place, and bound for Barbadoes, in which I took my passage, and was forced to pay for the same 66 pieces of eight and two slaves.

"Saturday, 18th November, 1699, I departed from Fort Dolphin with four of the people more that belonged to the ship "Prophet Daniel," in the aforesaid pinke Vine, for Barbadoes, leaving on shore, of the ship's company, only a mulatto boy, called Gabriel; 22d December, 1699, arrived at the Cape of Good Hope, where the vessel took in water and provisions and departed 16th January, 1700; February 2d, arrived at St. Helena and departed 8th do; 17th February, arrived at the island of Ascension, got turtle and fish and departed 18th do.; 24th March, arrived at Barbadoes; 17th April, 1700, departed from Barbadoes in the pinke Blossom, Robert Darkins, commander, bound for New York; 11th May, 1700, I arrived at New York, and because I may not be censured an ill man, and that it may be thought that I have saved any thing that belongs to the owners of said ship, I do declare that I have not, directly nor indirectly, saved any thing that belongs to them, nor wronged them of the value of a farthing, but contrary, I have done all possible to serve their interest that I could.

"JOHN CRUGER."

Mr. Cruger established himself in business in this city and soon became a prosperous merchant. He was elected Alderman of the Dock Ward in 1712, for twenty-two successive years, viz., until 1733. He was appointed Mayor in 1739, and was annually re-appointed until 1744, soon after which period he died. His son, of the same name, was a few years afterward Mayor of this city. He left several sons, all men of talents, who occupied high positions in the community, and were the heirs of a large property, the result of the industry and enterprise of the subject of this sketch. The residence of Mr. Cruger was in Broad street, and was one of the finest mansions in the city. His descendants are numerous among us at the present day.

At the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 11,000 inhabitants.

STEPHEN BAYARD,

MAYOR IN 1744-5-6.

MR. BAYARD was a descendant of the family of that name, some account of which has been given in another place. He was a man of large property and active business habits.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 12,000 inhabitants.

EDWARD HOLLAND,

MAYOR IN 1747-8-9-50-1-2-3-4-5-6.

DIED before the expiration of his term, 10th November, 1756.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 13,000 inhabitants.

JOHN CRUGER, Jr.,

MAYOR IN 1756-7-8-9-60-1-2-3-4-5.

This gentleman, a son of the former Mayor of the same name, was a merchant, engaged extensively in shipping. "Cruger's wharf," the place of business of Mr. Cruger, was on the present south side of Old Slip. The family became among the wealthiest in the city. Mr. Cruger was elected Alderman of the Dock Ward in 1754 and 5. The following year, on the death of Mayor Holland, (November, 1756,) he was appointed Mayor, which office he held about ten years.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 15,000 inhabitants.

WHITEHEAD HICKS,

MAYOR IN 1766-7-8-9-70-1-2-3-4-5-6.

THE family of Hicks had emigrated to New York in 1741, with other English families of the people called Quakers, who had previously sought a refuge in Holland from religious persecution. These emigrants fixed themselves on Long Island, in Queens county. Three brothers, of the name of Hicks, were among these English emigrants—Thomas, John and Robert. From Judge Thomas Hicks, the eldest brother, was descended the subject of this notice—Whitehead Hicks. He was born on the 24th of August, 1723, was designed for the profession of the law, and placed in the office of William Smith, Esq., in the city of New York. In 1750, he received his license as an attorney. He married the only daughter of John Brevoort, of New York. In October, 1766, he received his commission as Mayor of New York, which office he held for several subsequent years. On the breaking out of the Revolutionary War, the position of Mr. Hicks brought him into prominent action in the events occurring in the vicinity of this city.

Mr. Hicks, it is believed, was in favor of independence; but, being surrounded with difficulties, owing to the difference between his political sentiments and his relation to the government, which was still in the hands of the English, he resigned in the early part of the year 1776, and was appointed Judge of the Supreme Court of this province. The struggle, however, which had commenced soon after, occasioned his retirement to his farm at Bayside, where he died, before the termination of the war, on the 4th of October, 1789.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 20,000 inhabitants.

DAVID MATTHEWS,

MAYOR DURING THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

UPON the resignation of Whitehead Hicks, in February, 1776, David Matthews, who was at the time Alderman of the East Ward, was appointed Mayor.

JAMES DUANE,

MAYOR IN 1783-4-5-6-7-8.

JAMES DUANE, the first Mayor after the Revolutionary War, was born in the city of New York, on the 6th of February, 1733. He was the third son of Anthony Duane, a gentleman from Cong, in the County of Galway, Ireland, who, having, when very young, been a purser in the British navy, on the New York station, resigned his situation and returned to the city of New York, where he spent the rest of his life as a merchant, and where he died, on the 14th of August, 1747. The mother of James Duane was Altena Keteltas, daughter of one of the most considerable merchants, and long an Alderman of the city of New York. She died when he was only three years old, and, in May, 1741, his father married a third wife, the widow of Thomas Lynch, whose maiden name was Riker, of Flushing, L. I. Two of the brothers of James Duane held appointments in the British navy.

The profession of the law being selected as the future occupation of James Duane, he entered the office of James Alexander, one of the most eminent counsel of our colonial bar, and the father of the American General, Lord Sterling. He was admitted an attorney of the Supreme Court on the 3d of August, 1754, and was soon intrusted with a large professional business. On the 21st of October, 1759, Mr. Duane married Mary, the eldest daughter of Colonel Robert Livingston, then proprietor of Livingston's manor. His professional standing soon caused him to be retained in most of the heavy suits brought to litigation. He was the attorney of Trinity Church in the suits relating to the property claimed by the heirs of Anneke Jans.

Mr. Duane's father had left to him and his three brothers, among other property, about six thousand acres of wild land, in the present town of Duaneburgh, Schenectady county. By the death of two of his brothers, and by purchase from the third, and by other purchases, he subsequently became the owner of nearly the whole of that township, then a wilderness. In 1765, he commenced measures for its settlement, and entered into a contract with a company of twenty Germans, from Pennsylvania, who made the first permanent settlement of that town.

The king, in council, having decided, in 1764, that the territory now called Vermont was part of the colony of New York, Mr. Duane made purchases of about sixty-four thousand acres, which cost him upwards of eight thousand dollars, nearly all of which was lost, upon the State of New York relinquishing its right to that territory.

When faithful and skillful agents were sought for, in 1774, to devise means to regain those rights which England had grossly infringed, Mr. Duane was naturally one of the earliest selected. He was a member of most of the committees in the city of New York; raised to devise plans for opposing British encroachments; and when the general Congress, of 1774, was determined upon, and the Colonial Assembly had refused to appoint any delegates to act, Mr. D. was elected by the people, not only of that city, but of several counties. He set out for the Congress on the 31st of August, accompanied from his house to the foot of Broad street (whence he took the ferry boat) by a great procession, with music playing and colors flying. On arriving at the Exchange, then in that street, the procession halted, and he addressed the citizens. In the course of the session of this Congress (which was held at Philadelphia,) a committee was appointed to state the rights of the colonies, the several instances in which they had been violated, and the means most proper to obtain redress. Of this important committee Mr. Duane was a member. The expenses of delegates from New York to the first Congress seem to have been paid by themselves, and Mr. Duane's, as entered in his memorandum book, were £37 and upwards, exclusive of two months' board.

In April, 1775, Mr. Duane was elected a member of the Provincial Congress, which met on the 20th of that month, in the city of New York, and by that body was chosen a delegate to the Congress that had been recommended to meet in Philadelphia on the 10th of May.

In 1776, he was chosen to the Provincial Congress of New York. The convention was obliged to retire from the city, on account of the invasion of the British troops, and Mr. Duane removed his family from the city in June, 1776, and did not return to it until after the close of the war. The Congress, however, continued to meet at various places, and was attended by Mr. Duane. In 1777, he was chosen for the general Congress at Philadelphia, where he remained until December of that year, when, having obtained leave of absence, he returned to his family at Livingston's manor. In the spring and summer of 1778, Mr. Duane had an attack of sickness, and did not return to Congress until November, 1778, having been re-appointed a delegate on the 16th of October preceeding. He was also a member the several succeeding years, until the close of the war. On the 29th of November, 1783, with General WASHINGTON, Governor Clinton, and hundreds of his fellow-exiles, he re-entered his native city in triumph, when he took possession of his dilapidated property. He found his houses in King (now Pine) street, and at the corner of Water street and Fly Market, almost entirely destroyed. His farm, as he calls it, consisting of about twenty acres, at what is now called Grammerey Park, and its vicinity, was in pretty good order, the house having been occupied by one of the British generals.

About the last of December, 1783, Mr. Duane was elected State Senator. The Common Council of the city soon after petitioned the governor to appoint him mayor, "as no one," they say in their petition, "is better qualified, so none will be more acceptable to us and our constituents at large than Mr. Duane. Few have sacrificed more, or deserve better from their country." He was accordingly appointed, on the 5th of February, 1784, Mayor of this city. He presided in the Mayor's Court for nearly six years.

In 1789, Mr. Duane was nominated by President Washington, and appointed by the Senate, District Judge of the District of New York. For about five years, Judge Duane continued to execute the duties of this office. But, finding his health feeble, he resigned his office, with the intention of establishing his residence at Duaneburgh, where his only son and one of his daughters resided. He removed to Schenectady, where he owned some property, and where he had frequently spent part of the year with his family, designing to remain in that city until he could carry into effect his intention of fixing his permanent residence in Duaneburgh. In 1796, he commenced building a house in that town for his own residence, but he never lived to complete it. On the morning of the first of February, 1797, just as he was about to rise, he was taken with an affection of the heart, and expired immediately.

Judge Duane was survived by his widow, one son and four daughters. The son was the late James C. Duane, of Schenectady. His oldest daughter married the late General North, of Duaneburgh, and is long since dead. His second daughter married George W. Featherstonhaugh, an English gentleman, who, after her death, returned to England. Another daughter married the late Alfred S. Pell, Esq. Another daughter is, or was recently, residing at Duaneburgh.

Judge Duane is interred under the church he built in Duaneburgh, and a neat mural tablet within the church is erected to his memory.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 25,000 inhabitants.

RICHARD VARICK,

MAYOR IN 1789-90-1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8-9-1800.

THE common ancestor of the family of that name in this State, was the Reverend Rudolphus Van Varick, minister of the Dutch Reformed Church at Jamaica, Long Island, who died in the year 1691; the following year his venerable widow followed him, leaving four children — Joanna, Marinus, Rudolphus, and Cornelia.

Immediately after the Declaration of Independence, in 1776, the subject of this sketch, then a young lawyer of this city, tendered his services to Major General Schuyler, commanding the Northern army, and was appointed his military secretary. In February, 1776, he was appointed, by Congress, Deputy Commissary General of Musters for the Northern army, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, and joined the army in that capacity in the spring of the same year, and continued attached thereto after the command of that army was conferred upon the late Major General Gates. He was present at the memorable battles of Stillwater and Saratoga, (15th of September and 7th October, 1777,) and with others reaped the reward of those actions in the surrender of the British army, commanded by Gen. Burgoyne, to General Gates, on the 16th day of October, in the same year. After Burgoyne's surrender, Colonel Varick was stationed at West Point, and performed the duty of Inspector General of the troops of that post and its vicinity until after the treason of General Arnold, to whose family he was for some time attached as Aid-de-camp. After the desertion of Gen. Arnold, Colonel Varick was attached to the military family of General Washington, in which capacity he was, by him, appointed his Recording Secretary, until near the close of the Revolutionary War, and possessed his esteem and confidence in an eminent degree.

After the evacuation of this city by the British troops, on the 25th of November, 1783, and the restoration of the civil government of this State, Col. Varick was appointed Recorder of the city. In the year 1789, he held the office of Attorney General of the State, and the following year was appointed Mayor of the city, which office he held for twelve years.

Upon his retirement from public office, he devoted himself to charitable and benevolent pursuits. He was President of the Society of the Cincinnati for nearly thirty years.

Mr. Varick died at an advanced age, in the year 1831.

In the latter part of his mayoralty, the city contained about 50,000 inhabitants.

EDWARD LIVINGSTON,

MAYOR IN 1801-2.

MR. LIVINGSTON was born in the year 1764, at Clermont, (Livingston's Manor,) in Columbia county, in the State of New York. He went to school at Albany, and then at Kingston, Ulster county. In 1779, he entered an advanced class of Princeton College, where he took his degree of A. B. two years afterward. Having selected the law for a profession, he pursued the study of it at Albany; and upon being admitted to the bar in 1785, established himself in the city of New York. There, before he had attained the age of thirty, he had acquired a high reputation for his attainments as a jurist and ability as an advocate. In 1794, Mr. Livingston was elected a member of Congress from the district of New York, and remained a member of that body for six years, being then in the opposite ranks to the government of Mr. Adams. Shortly after retiring from Congress, he was appointed by Mr. Jefferson to the office of United States Attorney for the district of New York; and in the year 1801-2, held the office of Mayor of the city of New York. Having become involved, through the misconduct of persons intrusted with collection of debts for the United States, Mr. Livingston thought proper to resign his office, and removed to Louisiana, with the design of availing himself of the rising fortunes of that newly acquired territory, to retrieve his pecuniary condition: a design in which he was successful; and he ultimately paid the obligations which he had incurred, both principal and interest.

He was appointed by the Legislature of Louisiana, one of the Commissioners to prepare a system of Judiciary for that State. This gave rise to the civil code of Louisiana, justly considered as a work of great merit, and reflecting the highest credit upon its framers. In 1821, he was appointed sole commissioner to prepare a system of criminal law, which still further extended his reputation as a man of profound mind and great learning. It attracted the attention of the public in Great Britain and France; and as a work, deserving the consideration of the world at large, was reprinted in London, and translated into the French language at Paris. A biographer of Mr. Livingston remarks: "The beauty of its arrangement, the wisdom of its provisions, and the simplicity of its forms, have never been surpassed, probably never equaled, in any similar work; and it is not without entire justice that this admirable production has contributed, perhaps more than any other of his labors, to secure to Mr. Livingston that eminent place which he holds among those who are regarded not merely as distinguished jurists, but as eminent philanthropists."

In 1823, Mr. Livingston was elected a member of Congress from the State of Louisiana; and in 1829, was appointed by the Legislature to a seat in the Senate. In 1831, he was appointed by President Jackson (whose Aid he had been at the battle of New Orleans,) to the office of Secretary of State. In the year 1833, he was appointed Minister to France, in a time of peculiar importance, and conducted his mission in the most satisfactory manner.

On his return to America, in the spring of 1835, he retired to his seat at Rhinebeck, on the Hudson river, where he died on the 23d of May, 1836.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 60,000 inhabitants.

DE WITT CLINTON,

MAYOR IN 1803-4-5-6-8-9-11-12-13-14.

DE WITT CLINTON was born March 2, 1669, at Little Britain, in Orange county, New York. His father served with great distinction during the Revolutionary War, and became a Major General in the army of the United States. His mother was a De Witt, a member of the distinguished Dutch family of that name. He was educated at Columbia College, where he highly distinguished himself. He then commenced reading law with the Honorable Samuel Jones, and in due time was admitted to the bar. But before he was able to acquire any practice of importance, he was appointed Private Secretary to his uncle, George Clinton, and continued in this office until the end of his relative's administration, in 1785. In the interim, he had been chosen Secretary to the Board of Regents of the University and to the Board of Fortifications of New York. In 1797, he was elected a member of the Legislature, at the time when the two great parties which afterward divided the country were organized, and embraced the republican or democratic side. In 1800, he was chosen by the Council of Appointment, of which body he was a member, to support their cause in a controversy between them and Governor Jay. The same year he was chosen a member of the United States Senate, to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of General Armstrong, and continued a member of that body for two sessions. After that period, he was chosen Mayor of New York, and remained in this situation, with the intermission of two years, until 1815, when he was obliged to resign on account of the violence of party politics. In 1817, he was elected, almost unanimously, Governor of the State of New York—the two great parties having combined for the purpose of raising him to that dignity. This harmony continued until the distribution of offices, when discontent was excited, and an opposition commenced to his administration. He was re-elected, however, in 1820, notwithstanding the great exertions of the opposite party, who had induced Daniel D. Tompkins, then Vice-President of the United States, and, from his popularity in his native State, emphatically termed the Man of the People, to become his opponent. After his re-election, great resistance was made to his measures ; but, fortunately, the Canal scheme, of which Mr. Clinton was one of the prime movers and most efficient advocates, had been so firmly established that it was secure from attack. In 1822 he declined offering himself again as a candidate, and retired into private life. He was then acting as one of the Canal Commissioners, of which office he was deprived in 1823. This act of his opponents occasioned a reaction of public feeling with regard to him, and his friends brought him forward in 1824 as a candidate for Governor, to which office he was elected by a large majority over the late Colonel Young. In 1826, he was again elected by a large majority over Judge Rochester, but he died before his term was completed. His decease was in consequence of a catarrhal affection of the throat and chest, which being neglected, occasioned a fatal disease of the heart. He expired almost instantaneously, while sitting in his library, after dinner, February 11, 1823. His son was writing near him, and on being informed by him of a sense of oppression and stricture across the breast, immediately called in medical aid, but before the physician could arrive Mr. Clinton was dead. Mr. Clinton was tall, firmly proportioned, and of a commanding aspect. In his domestic relations he was cheerful and kind; in his friendships, warm and sincere. He was an early riser, and extremely laborious. Mr. Clinton was twice married ; his first wife was Miss Maria Franklin, the daughter of an eminent merchant of New York, by whom he had seven sons and three daughters. His second wife was Miss Catharine Jones, daughter of Doctor Thomas Jones, of this city.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 70,000 inhabitants.

MARINUS WILLETT,

MAYOR IN 1807.

COL. WILLETT was the great great grandson of Thomas Willett, the first mayor of New York. He commenced his military career at the time of the old French war, and was present at the battle of Lake George, where the first Lord Howe was killed. He became distinguished, in the times of the revolutionary war, as one of the most efficient officers in the American army. His principal theatre of action lay in the middle and western part of this state, in the country of the Five Nations, then friendly to the British cause. The history of the Revolution exhibits the opening of the year 1781 as one of the gloomiest periods of the war. The army was greatly distressed for provisions, and several regiments of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey lines had actually revolted. In the mean time, Brandt, the leader of the Indians, was extremely active in the Mohawk country, and a common sense of the desperate condition of the American cause seemed to prevail among the inhabitants of that section. There was, however, one officer whose name, among the people, was a tower of strength. This was Col. Willett, who, about this period, was induced, by Governor Clinton, to take the command of all the militia levies, and state troops, that might be raised for the protection of the country. He arrived at Fort Rensselaer, (Canajoharie,) where he established his headquarters, toward the close of June. His forces were very small, but were represented by himself as "keen for revenge, and properly determined." His first essay against the savage enemy was about the first of the following month. The smoke of a village on fire was reported by his scouts, who also tracked the savages, and discovered their encampment. These being reported to Willett, he collected his levies, and moved towards the enemy, with the design of taking them by surprise. The encampment was in a thick cedar swamp, five or six miles north-east of Cherry Valley, and, of course, to reach it through the woods, during an exceedingly dark night, and without any better road than a bridle-path, was no small undertaking. It had been ascertained that the Indians numbered between two and three hundred, commanded by a tory, named John Dextader, in connection with an Indian chief, named Quackyak. Col. Willett's strength, levies and militia included, did not exceed one hundred and fifty men. The plan of falling upon the enemy while asleep, did not exactly succeed, in consequence of the difficulties of the march—occasioned by the darkness, the thickness of the woods, and, worse than all, by the losing of his way by the guide. It was therefore nearly six o'clock when he arrived in the vicinity of the encampment; and, instead of falling upon the enemy by surprise, he found them occupying a more favorable situation, and awaiting his reception. Immediate dispositions were made to engage the enemy, with a view to which a stratagem was laid, to draw him from the advantageous position he had chosen. For this purpose, before the Indians had become fully aware of Willett's near approach, a lieutenant, named Jacob Sammons, was detached, with ten resolute men, to steal as near to them as possible—give them one well directed fire, and retreat. The ruse succeeded. Sammons and his men turned their backs on the first yell of the Indians, and the latter sprang forward in pursuit. They were soon met by Col. Willett in person, advancing at the head of his main division. The enemy did not wait an attack, however, but, with great appearance of determination, advanced with their wonted shouts and yells, and began to fire. The onset of the Indians was furious, but they were received with firmness, and in turn the Americans advanced upon them with loud huzzas, and such manifestations of spirit as soon caused them to give way. The Indians now betook themselves to their old game of firing from behind the trees; but Willett's men understood that mode of fighting as well as themselves. Willett pressed forward, cheering his men; and, being followed by his men with the bayonet, the enemy was put to flight about half an hour after the commencement of the action. They ran down the Susquehanna, on their old war-path. The loss of the Indians was about 40 killed. Willett's loss was 5 killed, 9 wounded. Several other affairs, in which the commanding officer displayed great spirit, served to inspire the inhabitants with great confidence in him, and so rapidly did he infuse something of his own fire and energy into the bosoms, even of the dispirited and broken militia, that they presently appeared like a different race of men.

In the month of October, 1681, the last invasion of the Mohawk valley, of any consequence, occurred: A secret expedition against Johnstown, was planned by the Johnstons, the British agents in that county, and executed with such silent celerity that, on the 24th of that month, about 1000 men, from Canada, struck off through the forests, and broke in upon Warrensbush, near the junction of Schoharie Kill with the Mohawk river, and about 20 miles distant from the headquarters of Willett. They had time to commit great havoc and devastation before Willett could muster his forces; but he immediately collected recruits, and marched the same day of the attack to meet the invaders. Willett had but 416 men, all told. Having sent out a flanking party of 60 men, Willett advanced upon the enemy at the head of his column. The forces met, and the battle soon became general. The disparity of forces was such as to compel the Americans to give way, and, but for the flanking party sent out, their defeat would have been inevitable. This party, however, fell on the rear of the enemy just at the moment of victory. The diversion was such as to once more renew the general battle, and, after a severe contest, the enemy retreated to the woods, nor stopped short of a mountain top six miles distant. The loss of the Americans was about 40. That of the enemy about the same number killed, and 50 prisoners. Willett pursued the enemy, and followed them night and day, committing great havoc among them. Among others of the enemy who were killed, was their leader, Butler. He was shot down by the rifle of one of Willett's Indians, who, after bringing the officer down, followed to the spot where he fell, and found him, not dead, but sorely wounded, sitting against a tree. The Indian advanced, shot him again, through the eye, and took his scalp. The victory of Willett was complete, and he returned with his little army in triumph.

Col. Willett was honored in civil life with several profitable offices, among others, that of Sheriff of New York. He lived to a very advanced age, at his farm, near the present Corlaer's Hook. He died on the 22d of August, 1830, at the age of 90 years. The coffin, in which he was interred, was made of pieces of wood collected by himself many years before, from different revolutionary battle-grounds. The corpse, in compliance with a written request of the deceased, was habited in a complete suit of ancient citizen's apparel, including an old-fashioned three-cornered hat. Several thousand persons passed through the house, for the purpose of viewing his remains.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 80,000 inhabitants.

JACOB RADCLIFF,

MAYOR IN 1810-15-16-17.

THE father of Mr. Radcliff, named William, was a captain of militia, in the Revolution, and rose to the station of brigadier-general. He was a member of the State Legislature, (his residence then being at Rhinebeck, Dutchess county,) and died in 1813, leaving four sons and two daughters. Jacob the eldest, was bred to the bar, commenced practice at Poughkeepsie, which he followed with distinguished success, and, at an early age, was raised to the bench of the Supreme Court, after which period he removed to the city of New York, and soon after resigned his judicial office, returning to the practice of his profession, and was soon after appointed Mayor of the city, which he held, at intervals, during four years.

Mr. Radcliff continued his professional pursuits, until within a few years past, having died at a venerable age.

In the latter portion of his term of mayoralty, the city contained about 100,000 inhabitants.

CADWALADER D. COLDEN,

MAYOR IN 1818-19-20.

MR. COLDEN was the grandson of Lieutenant-Governor Colden, and son of David Colden. He was born at Springhill, near Flushing, on the 4th of April, 1769, and was educated, in part, by a private tutor, and, in part, at the school in Jamaica. In 1784 he accompanied his father to England, and was placed in a classical school near London, where he remained until the fall of the following year, when he returned to New York. Being destined for the profession of the law, he commenced his studies in this city, and subsequently pursued them in the Province of New Brunswick, and also at Kinderhook, in this state. He was admitted an attorney, in the year 1791, and commenced practice in the city of New York; but soon after removed to Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county. In 1796, he resumed his practice in the city of New York. About this period he was appointed District Attorney, which he held for several years.

On account of ill health he embarked for France, in the spring of 1803, and resided in Europe about eighteen months. Upon his return he resumed the practice of his profession with great success, and soon stood among the leaders of the profession as a commercial lawyer, and was equally eminent in other branches of the profession. In the time of the war of 1812, he was an active man in military life; was elected a colonel of volunteers, and contributed his aid in the erection of the fortifications for the defence of the city.

In 1818, Mr. Colden was elected a member of Assembly, and, in the same year succeeded Mr. Clinton as Mayor. In 1822 he was elected to Congress, and in 1824 to the Senate of this state. A favorite object with him, in public life, was the advancement in educational and moral points of view of the youthful portion of the community; and he was a prominent advocate of public schools. He was subsequently President of the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents, and, for many years, was Governor of the New York Hospital.

He was the author of the memoir of the Erie Canal, published by order of the State Legislature, and was one of the prominent advocates of the internal improvement system, then a subject of considerable excitement in this State. After his withdrawal from the Senate, in 1827, he devoted much of his time to the superintendence of the Morris Canal, connecting the waters of the Delaware and Hudson River, and for convenience in this respect, removed his residence to Jersey City.

The life of his friend, Robert Fulton, is his chief literary production. It was read by him before the New York Literary and Philosophical Society, and published by them.

Mr. Colden, after a life of usefulness and activity, died at his residence, in Jersey City, on the 7th of February, 1834, of dropsy in the chest.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 120,000 inhabitants.

STEPHEN ALLEN,

MAYOR IN 1821, 1822.

STEPHEN ALLEN was, in early life, a sailmaker by trade; and having taken an interest in political affairs, was elected Assistant Alderman of the Tenth Ward, in the years 1817 and 1818. The following two years he was elected Alderman of the same ward. The public spirit manifested by Mr. Allen, in the discharge of his official duties, induced his friends to bring him forward, for the first civic position in the city, to which he was appointed by the Common Council, for two successive years. Ten years subsequently, Mr. Allen was elected Assistant Alderman of the Tenth Ward. Having acquired a large fortune, by his successful occupation in commercial pursuits, to which he devoted himself for many years, after giving up his trade, Mr. Allen became conspicuously concerned in banking and insurance companies, and in various charitable enterprises; his character for probity and intelligence being a sufficient guarantee for his faithful performance of the most responsible trusts. For several years Mr. Allen held the office of State Senator, and, as such, became a member of the Court of Errors, the highest court of appeal in the State. In this capacity, although bred in a school of business, widely different from the studies of the legal profession, the natural talent of Mr. Allen was such as at once to give him clear and distinct views of the most subtle questions brought before the court; and his written opinions, on many abstruse cases, evince his remarkable tact in this respect.

Having attained the venerable age of fourscore, Mr. Allen, still in good health, had spent some years in comparative retirement from his early pursuits. He died in the summer of the year 1852, one of the victims of the ill-fated steamer Henry Clay, which was consumed by fire, near the village of Yonkers, on the Hudson.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 140,000 inhabitants.

WILLIAM PAULDING,

MAYOR IN 1823, 4, 6, 7.

ON the conquering of the country by the English, several persons of this name were found in the country. The subject of this sketch was born at Tarrytown, Westchester county. His father was one of the principal patriots of that county, in the time of the Revolutionary War, and represented the county in the first Provincial Congress. The name of John Paulding, one of the family, is familiar to the country, from his connection with the capture of Andre, near Tarrytown. This event happened in the month of September, 1780. Paulding, and his two companions, all being mere youths just turned into manhood, the eldest being about twenty-one years old, were in the vicinity of their homes, having engaged in an adventure, very common, in those days, among the young farmers of that county, in watching the movements of British cattle drivers, and other suspicious persons traveling through this country, then called the neutral ground, lying between the lines of the two armies. The parties, in their testimony, before the court-martial for the trial of Joshua Smith, gave the following account of the transaction: Paulding, Van Wart and Williams, were lying by the side of the road, near Tarrytown, on Saturday morning, between nine and ten o'clock, of the 23d of September; they had lain there about one hour and a half, and had seen several persons, with whom they were acquainted, whom they had let pass. Presently they observed a gentlemanly looking man coming up the road, and Paulding was requested by his companions to step out to see if he knew him. The latter stopped the horse of Andre, and asked him where he was going. To which, Andre replied, as the others came up, "Gentlemen, I hope you belong to our party?" "Which party?" exclaimed the young men. Andre replied, "the lower party," and received an affirmative answer. He then continued, "I am a British officer, and hope you will not detain me a minute, as I am upon urgent business." He was then ordered to dismount, and surrender himself a prisoner, when finding his dilemma, he endeavored to laugh the matter over, and produced Arnold's pass. But the young men being satisfied of some mystery, proceeded to search the person of their prize; and, having taken him into the bushes, ordered him to pull off his clothes, which he did, and they discovered papers between his stockings and feet. Paulding, upon examination of them, declared he was a spy. Andre here resorted to bribery, and offered his horse, saddle, bridle, a gold watch, and also any sum of money to be named by them for liberty to depart. To which Paulding replied, "No, if you would give us two thousand guineas, you should not stir one step!" Andre was then directed to mount, and Paulding, taking the bridle of the horse, led the way towards the nearest American post. During this journey Andre did not speak. Meeting, however, with one of his friends on the road, Paulding ordered the captive to dismount, and show his watch, but not to stir, or he was a dead man. After some short conversation with his friend, Paulding directed Andre to remount, and then conducted him to the headquarters of Colonel Jaméson. The important sequel of this adventure is well known in the history of the Revolution.

General William Paulding, the subject of this sketch, having removed to this city about the year 1795, engaged in the study of the law, and commenced practice about the year 1797. In 1802, he formed a partnership with Mr. Bartow, the law firm being Paulding & Bartow; and at this period had established a lucrative and successful practice. Soon after this period, he married a daughter of Philip Rhinelander, Esq., an eminent and wealthy merchant. In the time of the late war with Great Britain, (1812,) he was active in promoting the military spirit of the citizens, and rose to the rank of general in the militia. Since the mayoralty of Mr. Paulding he has not engaged in active public duties, and at present resides, at an advanced age, at his elegant mansion, on the banks of the Hudson, near Tarrytown.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 170,000 inhabitants.

PHILIP HONE,

MAYOR IN 1825.

MR. HONE was born in this city, his father residing and doing business in John street. In early life, Mr. Hone entered the mercantile profession in Maiden lane, and afterward engaged in the auction and commission business in Pearl street, with an elder brother, the late John Hone. For many years the brothers were connected as auctioneers with Mr. Charles Town, under the firm of Hones and Town; and after Mr. Town retired from the concern, continued business under name of J. & P. Hone & Co., always standing at the head of the auctioneers of this city for capital, and reputation as business men. They amassed handsome fortunes. About the year 1820, Mr. Hone retired from active business pursuits, and visited Europe, where he was present at the coronation of George IV. Returning to the United States, he embellished his fine house in Broadway, opposite the Park, with many subjects of foreign art, and an elegant and extensive library.

The Mercantile Library of this city—established, as is well known, for the benefit and cultivation of the mercantile clerks of this city, in which it has been among the most successful institutions of its kind in the country—has always ranked Mr. Hone among its most powerful friends. He participated in the erection of Clinton Hall for their accommodation; and himself owning the adjoining lots, he built thereon a spacious building, to conform to, and apparently form part of, the edifice erected for the purpose referred to.

As a politician, Mr. Hone was of the Whig party. He was elected Assistant Alderman of the Third Ward in 1823 and 1824, on the ticket with William H. Ireland. The following year he was placed in nomination for Alderman, but was defeated; Mr. Campbell P. White being the successful candidate. He was, nevertheless, elected Mayor, although there was a democratic majority in the Board, in consequence of a quarrel between the friends of the two democratic candidates, William Paulding and William P. Van Ness. The era of his mayoralty was marked as one of great magnificence and hospitality defrayed from the private resources of Mr. Hone. The following year Mr. Hone was superseded in the mayoralty by Mr. Paulding.

In 1839, Mr. Hone was a candidate for the State Senate, but was defeated by Judge Scott. Under the Presidency of General Taylor, he was appointed Naval Officer of this port, which office he held at the time of his death, which occurred on the 5th of May, 1851, at his residence, corner of Broadway and Great Jones street.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 170,000 inhabitants.

WALTER BOWNE,

MAYOR IN 1823-9-30-1-2.

THE first of the name of Bowne in this country was John Bowne, a native of Matlock, in Derbyshire, England, who emigrated to Boston in 1619, in the twenty-second year of his age. His origin was humble, his habits plain, and his manners unaffected. He was endowed with a strong mind and sound judgment, whilst his avocations as a farmer tended to add to his physical powers of endurance. Having removed to Flushing, Long Island, he attended, at first from curiosity, some of the Quaker meetings in that town. Struck with the simplicity of their worship, he invited them to his home, and next became, in the course of the year 1662, a member of their society. His house henceforth became the head-quarters of their sect. Information of this fact being communicated to Governor Stuyvesant, who, in common with many of the other sects of Christians, was violently inimical to the Quakers, he ordered Bowne to be arrested, and fined him twenty-five pounds, to be committed until that sum was paid. Bowne suffered himself to be committed to prison, as his conscience prevented his paying a penalty, however trifling, for exercising the form of worship which he considered a duty. Continuing his resistance to the demands of the authorities, he was warned that he would be sent across the seas if he did not submit. This threat did not, however, prevail with him, and he was accordingly shipped for Holland, whither Stuyvesant wrote, in strong terms, complaining of the obstinacy of this man as a disturber of the peace and a contumacious subject, who was thus banished in the hope that others in the same course might be discouraged. On his arrival in Holland, Bowne made his case known to the West India Company, and found there a more charitable disposition towards the sect. They refused to recognize the justice of Stuyvesant's course; and, on the contrary, dispatched a missive to Stuyvesant, severely censuring the course pursued by him, advising him that, in the youth of the colony, its rulers ought rather encourage than check the population of the country; the consciences of men ought to be unshackled, so long as they continue moderate, peaceable, inoffensive, and not hostile to the government. The persecutions of the Quakers ceased from this time; but the affections of that people were alienated from the Dutch government of the colony after that period.

From this individual were descended numerous families of that name, inhabiting Long Island and the neighborhood. From James Bowne, a farmer at Flushing, was descended the subject of this sketch, who was born in the year 1770. Upon arriving at years of maturity, he engaged in the hardware business in this city, which he followed with success for a number of years, at the corner of Burling slip and Water street, in company with Richard T. Hallet. Mr. Bowne, upon his retirement from business, became a prominent politician of the Democratic party. He represented this city in the State Senate for three successive terms, and was appointed Mayor by the Common Council in the year 1827, continuing for the four succeeding years. Mr. Bowne was one of the Commissioners appointed by Congress for the erection of the Custom-house, which, we believe, was the last public duty of importance performed by him. He was noted in public and private for scrupulous and exact dealings, descending to the smallest details; and, by his successful business operations, acquired a large estate. Mr. Bowne died at his residence in Beckman street, in this city, on the 31st day of August, 1846, in the seventy-sixth year of his age.

In the time of his mayoralty, the city contained about 200,000 inhabitants.

GIDEON LEE,

MAYOR IN 1833.

GIDEON LEE was born in the town of Amherst, State of Massachusetts, on the 27th of April, 1773. He lost his father when a youth, and went to reside with an uncle, who was a farmer. "I remember," says he, "when I was a lad, living with my uncle. It was my business to feed and milk the cows; and many a time, long before light in the morning, I was started off in the cold and snow, without shoes, to my work, and used to think it a luxury to warm my frozen feet on the spot just before occupied by the animal I had roused. It taught me to reflect and to consider the possibility of bettering my condition."

Mr. Lee was apprenticed to the tanning and shoemaking, which occupation he followed in the town of Worthington, Massachusetts; and with the first means derived from the profits of his business, he improved his deficient education, at the Westfield Academy. After prosecuting his business for some time, he formed a partnership with Mr. Hubbard; subsequently they were burnt out, and he lost what property he had accumulated. He then dissolved with his partner, and removed to New York. But before establishing himself permanently here, he made a voyage to St. Mary's, Georgia, taking with him some small ventures of leather, and accompanying a party who went out for the purpose of cutting live oak timber for the United States navy. While there he contracted a fever, from the effects of which his constitution was considerably debilitated throughout his life.

The adventure of Mr. Lee was not a profitable one, and after remaining in the south one winter, he took passage for New York, but was wrecked off Cape Fear; gaining land, he commenced his journey on foot, in company of a friend named Smith. After many hardships he reached New York, not, however, before his funds had become exhausted, and he had been obliged to take jobs at chopping wood, in return for food furnished by the inhabitants along the road.

Having married a Miss Buffington, of the place of his former residence, Mr. Lee removed to New York in 1807, when he commenced the tanning business at a small shanty in Ferry street. His prudence, economy, and industry soon advanced him in prosperity. Mr. Lee lost his first wife in 1818.

In 1822, he was elected to the State Legislature. In 1823, he was married to a daughter of the Reverend David Williamson. In 1828 and 1829, he was elected Alderman of the Twelfth Ward, his residence being then in one of a row of fine marble houses, the first erected in Bond street, then in the suburbs of the city. In 1833, he was elected Mayor, and declined the renomination for the following year.

In 1836, Mr. Lee retired from the pursuit of active business, and soon after was elected to Congress, where he was distinguished by his close application to business. Shortly after his return from Washington, he removed his residence to the village of Geneva, Ontario County, where he had purchased a beautiful estate. He did not, however, long enjoy his retirement, being seized with a bilious fever, accompanied by neuralgia, early in July, 1841, and on the 21st August following was gathered to his fathers, in the sixty-fourth year of his age, leaving to his family an ample fortune—the fruits of an industrious and well spent life.

Extracts from the forthcoming work on the History of the City of New York, by D. T. VALENTINE, Clerk of the Common Council.

CHAPTER III.

THE BEGINNING OF THE CITY.

As the affairs of the city began to assume a settled condition, the public authorities and citizens turned their attention to the building of public and private edifices, adapted to the wants of the colony.

The Fort was probably the first permanent structure raised by the company on this island. The original of which was a block-house, surrounded with red cedar palisades, erected in 1626. In 1633, Van Twiller, then the Director-General, commenced the erection of a new fort, on a larger scale, being about three hundred feet long and two hundred and fifty broad, which was finished in 1635, at an expense of one thousand six hundred and eighty-eight dollars. The site of this edifice was on the blocks now inclosed by the Bowling Green, Whitehall, Bridge and State streets. This extensive structure was for the most part a mere bank of earth, except the points or extended corners, which were of stone. This fort was at first occupied as the Governor's quarters, and inclosed his residence and the several offices connected with the government. The soldiers were also quartered there.

The first church was, as has been stated, the second story of a horse-mill, erected in 1626. This, however, gave way, in the same year with the commencement of the fort (1633), to an edifice designed exclusively as a place of public worship. For greater distinction and show, this building was erected with its front to the East river. The entrance, however, being on a road now known as Bridge street, whence a passage ran along the church to its front. This structure was of wood, and without pretension to ornament. When, in a few years afterward, an Indian war was brought about by the hasty action of those in power, it was considered an unsafe place of meeting, the Indians having, in other exposed settlements, on several occasions, surprised the settlers while assembled in their churches, when the presence and affright of the females, subjected the settlers to a battle at great disadvantage. This period was in 1642; the misunderstanding with the Indians having taken place in the preceding year, and now threatening open hostilities, which soon after occurred. But the authorities did not choose to assign this as the reason of their proposed change; as the expense expected to be incurred was such as to invite attention on the part of the directors in Holland, and involved the charge of erroneous judgment in the original selection of the site. The reasons assigned for the new scheme were as follows: "It was a shame," say they, "that the English should see, when they passed, nothing but a mean barn, in which public worship is performed. The first thing they did in New England, when they raised some dwellings, was to build a fine church; we ought to do the same. We have good materials, fine oak wood, fine building stone, and good lime, made from oyster shells." The Director General proposed to erect this edifice within the fort. Some of the inhabitants objected to this, assigning, among other reasons, that it would prevent the wind having full play upon the windmill, which stood near the fort, on the shore of the North river, near to the present Battery. These objections were overruled, and a contract was made with John and Richard Ogden, of Stamford, Connecticut, who engaged to build a church of rock stone, seventy-two feet long, fifty-two feet broad, and sixteen feet over the ground, at a cost of about one thousand dollars. A marble slab was placed in the front of the building with this inscription, "Anno 1642; William Kieft, Directeur Generael; Heeft de gemeente Desen Tempel doen bouwen." The translation in English being this, "Anno 1642; William Kieft, Director General; hath the commonalty caused this temple to be built." This tablet was discovered upon the site of the old fort, about the close of the last century, buried in the earth. It was removed to the Dutch church, then in Garden street, (Exchange place,) and placed in the belfry, for preservation. On the destruction of the latter building by the great fire in 1835, this slab was lost in the general ruins. The expense of erecting the ancient edifice was borne partly by the citizens, a desirable opportunity having occurred for procuring subscriptions, on the occasion of a marriage of a daughter of Dominie Bogardus; while the festivities were at their height, the list was handed around, and the necessary amount subscribed.

The "old kirke," before-mentioned, however, continued in existence at least thirty years after its abandonment as a place of worship, as it is found in those latter years to have been occupied by one of the citizens for mercantile purposes. The site of this edifice was about the middle of the block, on the north side of the present Pearl street, between Broad and Whitehall streets.

Several other buildings of a public character were likewise erected by the company at an early period, among which were the Company's bakery, which was erected near the fort, on the present Pearl street, near Whitehall; the Company's brewery, on the present Bridge street, north side, between Broad and Whitehall streets; a house for the preacher, Dominie Bogardus, on the present Whitehall street, near Bridge street; a house for the fiscal or sheriff, in the same neighborhood. The first church yard, to be referred to hereafter more particularly, was established on the west side of the present Broadway, a short distance above Morris street, on the level ground above the hill at the Bowling Green,

In the year 1642, it was considered desirable to afford increased accommodation to travelers on their way from New England, and other places, for which purpose "a fine stone tavern" was erected, fronting the East river. This building, upon the organization of a city magistracy, in 1653, was turned into a town hall or "stadt huys," and is also more particularly referred to elsewhere. It was originally called the City Tavern.

Among the most substantial buildings, erected at an early period, were the store houses of the Company. These were five in number, constructed adjoining each other, built of stone, in a permanent and durable manner. These buildings occupied a position facing westward towards the fort. The line of the fronts is not now marked by any public thoroughfare, but in early times a street ran in front of them, known as "Winckle straat," under which head, in another part of this book, the site of the buildings is more particularly mentioned,

Two principal roads were established in this island, at an early period, one extending from the fort northward towards Harlem. For this a space was left in front of the sally-port, or front gate, of the fort, as a place for deploying and forming the soldiers, occupied at the present day by the Bowling Green, ascending the hill on the present line of Broadway it pursued a northerly course on a ridge to the south point of the present Park, when it followed the line of Chatham street to near the corner of Duane street. To avoid the steep descent, there encountered, it wound around to the right, making a circuit nearly on the present line of Duane, William and Pearl streets, until it reached the foot of the hill leading up to Chatham square where a wide space was allowed to the road to ease the ascent until arriving at the top of the hill, when a broad and handsome road was continued on the present line of the Bowery to Union square. Beyond that distance it continued in an irregular course upon the line recently closed, and holding, until lately, the name of the "Old Post Road," or the "Boston Road."

The other road was that leading from the ferry landing at the nearest point on the East river, between this island and Long Island; this landing was near the present site of Peek slip. Cornelius Dirckson was probably the first ferryman, and owned some land at this point as early as 1642. From the ferry the road ran along the river shore on the present line of Pearl street, as far as Hanover square. It continued then its direct course on the present Stone street to Broad street, where it encountered a small stream which it crossed by a bridge, then continuing on Stone street to the road along the side of the fort on the present Whitehall street.

This road to the ferry was the favorite site for those who desired a country residence. The west side was an elevated hill for a considerable distance, with a fine river prospect and tolerable soil; and therefore we find it the seat of the earliest residences of several of the principal inhabitants, who will be mentioned in the progress of our history.

Among the original grantees of property on this island were the following, the dates of their grants extending through a period of ten years.

Along the present line of Pearl street, south of the ferry, were the following:

Cornelius Direksen, the ferryman, land near the ferry.

Henry Bressar, land near Franklin square, north of Direksen's, containing 33 acres. Above him lay Wolfert's marsh, about the present Roosevelt street.

David Provoost, Philip De Truy, Cornelis Van Tienhoven, Laurens Cornelisen Vanderwel, Govert Loockermans—all these were persons in the employment of the company's establishment, in various capacities, and procured grants of large tracts between the ferry and the present Wall street, along the west side of Pearl street.

It was not until the year 1642 that any deeds or grants were made of town lots, and probably no title for lots below Wall street will date farther back, through individual proprietors, than that date. Previously the lots had been given to settlers by unwritten sanction, they having been generally allowed to select convenient lots; but the condition of the lower part of the island, then still in its natural state, led to certain lines of buildings which, with some alterations, became established as highways or streets, and have since remained permanent.

Lots on the lower part of Broadway began to be laid out and granted to individual proprietors in the year 1643. In that year Martin Crigier received the grant of a lot on the west side of the street opposite the Bowling Green. The several successive grantees of lots on that street were the following: To Allerton and Loockerman, merchants, a lot on the east side of the street above the present Beaver street. This lot contained 100 feet front, 225 feet deep, the rear being bounded by the marsh, covering the present Broad street and adjacent parts. To Andreas Hudde, one of the principal persons in the employ of the company, 62 feet front on the same side of the street, and about 225 feet deep. To Rutger Arentsen Van Seyl, also in the employ of the company, on same side of the street, 50 feet front, same depth as above. To Cornelius Volkertsen, also in the service of the company, on same side of the street and adjoining Van Seyl, 112 feet front, same depth as above. To Thomas Sandersen, also in same service, on same side of the street, and next above Hudde, 50 feet front, same depth as the others. To Philip Gerardy, a trader, on same side of the street next above Volkertsen, 100 feet front, about 225 feet deep on south side, and 210 feet on north side. To Jansen Van Jorcum, on same side of street, front about 100 feet. To Leendert Aerden, also in the service of the company, on same side of the street, about 50 feet front and 200 feet deep. To Arien Pietersin Van Alkmann, also in the service of the company, a lot on the west side of Broadway, opposite the Bowling Green, about 130 feet front and 98 feet deep. To Cosyn Gerretson, a lot on the east side of Broadway, adjoining Rutger Aertsen, about 50 feet front.

These grants were the first on Broadway, and many years elapsed before they were generally built upon. It is evident, however, that at this early period, the speculative value of property on that street was fully appreciated by the early settlers, as most of the grantees were in the employ of the company, and it is ascertained that but two or three of them ever actually built upon their lots, having, at subsequent periods, sold them to actual occupants. The grants above-mentioned were made prior to Stuyvesant's arrival in 1647. Previous to which period the west side of Broadway, between Morris and Rector streets, was occupied by the burial ground and by the country seats of Mr. Vandiegrist and Mr. Van Dyck, on the banks of the Hudson. Two lots above Van Dyck were granted by Stuyvesant to his two sons, Baltasar and Nicholas William, each about 100 feet front and 250 feet deep, running to the North river shore. We may consider the grants above enumerated as the beginning of Broadway in its character of a public street, it having previously been no more than a road through unimproved lands, owned by the West India Company, under their Indian title to the island.

It was suggested that the favorite building localities, in the outset of this city, were those immediately adjacent to the fort, one of the earliest being on the present line of Pearl street, between Whitehall and State streets. This had been occupied from the time that the fort was laid out in 1633. The situation was convenient for the class of buildings then customary, as protection was afforded from the cold northerly winds by the walls of the fort. Among the original occupants, ranging between the years 1643 and 1647, were the following, on the north side of the street, commencing at the present Whitehall street: Lamert Van Valkenburgh, Jan Evertsen Bout, Barent Jansen, Michael Paulusen, Anthony Jansen, Jochem Pietersen, Cors Pietersen, Gillis Pietersen, Claes Jansen, Joris Rapelje, Hans Hansen, Jan Snediger, Jacob Constable, Tryntre Jonas, Francis Doughty and Paulus Heymans. On the south side of the street were Rem Jansen, the Company's bakery, Jan Cornelisen Coster, Claes Jansen Van Naarden, Claes Jansen Ruyter, Cornelius Tunisien, Jan Jansen Schepmoes, Jurien Blanck.

The early settlers upon Whitehall street were as follows, in 1645:—Tunis Tomassen Van Naarden was granted the lot on the present south-east corner of Whitehall and Marketfield streets, having a front on Whitehall street of about one hundred feet, and depth on Marketfield street of about seventy feet. In the following year, a grant was made to Roelof Jansen Haes of the property fronting on the present Whitehall, Beaver and Marketfield streets, containing about ninety feet on Whitehall street, by seventy-five feet deep on the other streets. Between Stone and Bridge streets, several lots were granted in 1646. These lots extended between the present Whitehall street and a small street fronting the store houses of the company. The occupants were Jan Haes, George Holmes, Robert Butler, Everardus Bogardus, Sybout Clasen, Isaac De Forceest. The western side of this street was the line of the fort.

Bridge street, between Whitehall and Broad streets, was occupied by several residents at an early period. In 1642 and 3, Hendrich Hendrickson Kip received a grant on the north side of the street, containing about ninety feet front and seventy feet deep. In 1643, Abraham Jacobsen Van Steenwick sells to Anthony Jansen Van Fees part of his lot next to Kip, containing thirty feet front by one hundred and ten feet deep, for the sum of twenty-four guilders, or nine dollars and sixty cents. This is the earliest private conveyance on record of property in this city. Other original grantees of property on the north side of this street were Pieter Van Linden, Abraham Verplanck, Anthony Jansen, Hendrick, the Smith. On the opposite side of the street, the lots generally fronted on the river (now Pearl street.)

Stone street was also one of the thoroughfares early established, being, as we have stated, part of the first road laid out along the East river. The original occupants of that part of Stone street between Whitehall and Broad streets, were the following, their property being generally described as on "the road:" Adam Roelantsen, one hundred feet front; Arent —, the Smith; Phillip Gernaerdy, a trader; Oloff Stevenson Van Cortland, commissary; Gysbert Opdyck, commissary; Harinen Meyndertsen; Isaac Deforceest, brewer; Pieter Cornelison, carpenter, had a front on the south side of the street of about one hundred and forty feet, but of narrow depth. It will be seen from the character of the occupants, who were all actual residents, that this was one of the most fashionable streets of that time. The road, now called Stone street, was, as has been stated, continued by a bridge across the ditch at the present Broad street, and pursued its way along the shore. At an early period, the northerly side of this street, between Broad street and Hanover square, was granted in three parcels. Jacob Wolfertsen Van Couwenhoven, a prominent citizen, established a brewery, the buildings being constructed of stone, on a large lot fronting on the present Stone Broad and South William streets. Beyond him, the ground, being then vacant, was granted, in 1646, to Wessel Evertsen, containing a front of about two hundred and twenty feet, and an average depth of ninety feet. Beyond Evertsen, toward the present Hanover square, was the ground of a blacksmith named Burgher Jorisen, about one hundred and forty feet front and one hundred and thirty deep. This individual gave name to the present Old slip, which was for nearly a century known as Burgher's Path, and Burgher Joris' Path. East of Broad street, at this early period, the town had but few inhabitants.

Among the other streets settled upon about this period, was the present Broad street. Among the earliest of the owners were Roelof Jansen Haes, on the south-west corner of the present Broad and Beaver streets; Cornelis Melyn, on the east side, between the Road (Stone street) and the river, (Pearl street,) about ninety feet front and sixty-five feet deep; Michael Marshan, about one hundred and forty feet front and seventy feet deep; Thomas Sanderson, seventy-five feet front; Martin Ael, Govert Loockermans, seventy-five feet front; Gerret Douwman, about forty-five feet front, on west side of the street; William Cornelisen, sixty-eight feet front, on west side of the street; Abraham Rycken, on the east side, about one hundred and twenty feet front; Adrian Vincent, on same side, about ninety feet front; Tunis Kray, on west side of the street, about sixty feet front; Michael Picket. These were all below the present Beaver street—above that the street was not occupied.

On the present Beaver street, between Broadway and Broad street, were the following original settlers:—Paulus Vanderbeek, William Bredenbent, a tavern called "The Sign of the Lion," Evert Jansen, Pieter Mountfort, Jan Mountfort.

Marketfield street was also occupied as a public thoroughfare at a very early period, the original grantees being Claes Van Elslant, William Mourits, and others. It was one of the first roads established in the city.

The north side of Pearl street, between Broad and Whitehall streets, was occupied at an early period by several of the principal traders, and was for many years the principal business street. A small wharf, on piles, extended out on the present line of Moore street, at which goods, brought from vessels in the stream, by scows or other small boats, were landed.

Further extracts from the general description of the city in 1665, on the first surrender to the English:

"We have now come to the street at present called Broad street, which is described in the earliest times as 'the ditch.' This was originally a brook, the natural outlet of a marshy and springy place lying above Beaver street, surrounded by hills, except toward the outlet—the water from the slopes along Broadway, Wall street, and to the eastward, finding their way into this marsh. The ditch itself, at this period, was an artificial structure made by the inhabitants, from the necessity of draining this field for their own convenience. The principal drain extended from the river, at Pearl street, to the present Beaver street, and smaller branches were continued through the marsh, on the present line of the street, and also along its southerly border, on the present Beaver street. The main ditch was deepened sufficiently to admit the tide, and formed a convenient harbor near the river for small boats; it was not, however, for many years, improved by any artificial siding. The authorities began, about the year 1642, to grant gardens and building lots on both sides of this ditch, although these seem to have been very irregularly located, approaching and receding from a uniform line, as the convenience of the owners might dictate, the principal order being, we suppose, (as there had then been no survey of the town,) to leave a wagon road on each side of the drain. This irregularity is found to exist for some years subsequent.

"When the city thoroughfares were assigned names, as streets, in 1637, the various parts of this street were designated as follows: From the East river to Beaver street was called the 'Heere graft,' or great drain; above Beaver street, it was called the 'Prince graft.' These names were retained by the several portions of this street until toward the close of that century, when they gave place to the common appellation of Broad street, applied to the whole course of the street as far as Wall street."

It was about the year 1657 that the improvement of this ditch was taken in hand by the authorities. The Colonial government loaned the city about three hundred dollars toward deepening and widening it, and in the course of a year or two afterward, it was determined to make the improvement of a more permanent character, by siding up the bank with planks—the inhabitants on either side to be assessed for most of the expense. A very strong opposition was made to this by the owners of property, who alleged that they were in no manner benefited more than other citizens, and that it was an affair of general import; but the view taken by the authorities was that, in its former condition, the drain was a nuisance, by the abatement of which the inhabitants along the street were solely benefited. The expense of the work, when finished, in 1659, was found to be two thousand seven hundred and ninety-two florins, or about one thousand dollars. The collection of this assessment was strenuously resisted by the owners on the street, and recourse was compelled to be had to imprisonment of several of those who persisted in their opposition, until they were forced to submit.

After the street was thus improved, the part of it below the bridge at Stone street was wider and deeper than that above, and became the common mooring place of small boats and canoes. In this condition it continued for twelve or fourteen years, when it was found to be considerably dilapidated, and was directed to be repaired in the following manner: "From the shore of the river upward to the bridge at Stone street, to be made up of the same width and in the same manner as before. From the bridge or Stone street upward to the corner owned by Jochem Beekman, (south-east corner of Beaver street,) to be made up and finished in the new manner which has been tried by Johannes De Peyster, and is approved of by the authorities. From the corner of Jochem Beekman up to the corner of the lane opposite Mr. Jacob Kip's, in the same manner as before."

A few years after the whole of this drain was filled up, and no trace of it left upon the surface of the street, though, in recent excavations, posts have been found in that vicinity with ends of ropes attached, supposed to have been for fastening boats, the wood being still entire and sound.

We have before mentioned that north of Beaver street in Broad street, the ground was originally marshy; and it is found that, for a number of years, the west side of the street was occupied almost exclusively by tanneries, the most extensive being those of Coewraet Ten Eyck, lying a short distance above Beaver street. The north-west corner of the present Broad street and Exchange Place was occupied by a bark mill, and owned, in company, by the several tanners in the town. The principal residence on the east side of the street was that formerly belonging to Nicasiaus De Sille, one of the councilors of the province. This was situated on the south-east corner of Broad street and Exchange Place, the premises covering extensive grounds, embracing a large garden and an orchard.

The inhabitants upon this street at the period now referred to, (1665,) with sketches of their personal history, are given upon another page.

We have now come to the street, at that period called the "Heere straat" or great street, now Broadway; the street thus designated then beginning at a point nearly opposite the northerly side of the present Bowling Green, and extending to the "land gate" at Wall street.

We may here remark that the first church-yard of this city, and the spot where the ashes of most of the settlers and early inhabitants of this city are buried, was situated on the west side of Broadway, on the rise of ground above the Bowling Green, and a short distance north of the present Morris street. This ancient church-yard had become very full at the period now referred to (1665.) About ten years previously, (1656,) Governor Stuyveant proposed to abandon it as a place of burial, the fence having fallen down, and the whole become dilapidated through age; and as a substitute, he proposed tearing down some old buildings, which then stood south of the fort, and to make a burial place there. But upon consultation with the inhabitants and city magistrates, this did not meet their views, and they suggested laying out the grave-yard "on the hill west of the fort near the windmill," (part of the present Battery,) which was recommended as "a good hill, clear of timber." Between the conflicting propositions, no action in the matter was then taken; but about the period of which we now write, (1665,) a new fence was set up around the old grave-yard, which had for some time previously laid quite open to the encroachments of animals along the street. About ten years subsequently, (1676,) the old church-yard was divided up into four lots, 25 x 100, and sold at auction—a new burial place having been established near the present Trinity Church."

Of this ancient grave-yard, Claes Van Elslant was grave-digger. He was one of the earliest settlers in this city, and witnessed the foundation and the fall of the first burial place. He died about the period of the latter event, his son succeeding to the office of sexton. [See sketch under the head of "Inhabitants of Marketfield street."]

THE Secretary of the Director-General and Councilors, is, by these presents, authorized to repair to the small bench of the Justice of this city, and as schout there to make known to the Burgomasters and schepens, the resolution of the Director-General, and the High Councilors, in amplified and more full declaration of their instruction given the 26th February, 1654, leaving an authorized copy for their behoof.

(COPY.)

The Lord Director-General, having reported to the Council how that both the Burgomasters, Van Hatten and Krigier, and the majority of the Schepens appeared before him, on the 25th instant and shewed themselves aggrieved that the director General and Council without their knowledge should have interdicted and forbidden certain farmers servants to ride the goose at the feast of Bacchus and Shrove tide for reasons the Director General and Council thereunto moving—Besides in their time it has never been practiced here moreover it is altogether unprofitable, unnecessary and criminal for subjects and neighbors to celebrate such pagan and Popish feasts, and to practice such evil customs, and yet notwithstanding the same (as the Burgomasters and schepens sustain) may in some places of fatherland be tolerated and looked at through the fingers,—which interdict and ordinance the Court Messenger Claes Van Elslant summoned the farmers servants the day before the action, and having done it they nevertheless in the contempt and degrading of the High Authority trespassed whereupon certain of the delinquents were by the fiscal legally cited and summoned before the Director General to be examined and mulcted for the contempt as was proper, two or three of their number carried on with threatening, cursing, deriding and laughing at the High Council in an insolent and contumacious manner, in the presence and hearing of the Director General and Councilors themselves, for this they were properly committed to prison, at which the Burgomasters and Schepens do feel themselves in their quality particularly aggrieved! forsooth because the Director General had done this without their consent and knowledge! as if without the knowledge and consent of the Burgomasters and Schepens no order can be made no mob be interdicted from celebrating the feast of Bacchus ! Much less have the privilege of correcting such persons as tread under foot the Christian and Holy precepts, without the knowledge and consent of a little bench of justice ! appreciating their own quality, authority and commission better than others, they hereby make known to the Burgomasters and Schepens, that the institution of a little bench of Justice under the name and title of Schout—Burgomasters and Schepens or Commissioners does in no wise interfere with, or diminish aught of the power and authority of the Director General and Councillors in the enacting of any ordinances or making particular interdicts especially such as tend to the glory of God and the best interests of the Inhabitants, and much more to the prevention of gross sins, scandels and debaucheries and crimes, and for the correction of obstinate transgressors—to inflict upon them suitable penalties and punishments, what properly belongs to the qualifications of Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens, and for what purpose they are instituted is sufficiently clear from the instruction given them, by which they will please hereafter to abide and the same to observe, without continually vexing the Director General in particular and troubling him about any order resolution penalties or chastisements enacted against and concerning those who contravene them. But the Schout Burgomasters and Schepens having been petitioned by any subject or subjects for their interloction and intercession, whether it be concerning mitigation of interdict, order or chastisement against these or any persons summoned and examined by the Director General and Councillors on such a petition as after close investigation has been found to be in reason the Burgomasters and Schepens or commissioners not only of this city, but of all the other subaltern benches of Justice may approach the Director General and Counsellors by petition remonstrating and making known the grievances of themselves personally and of other subjects, with the accompanying reasons for the same whereon in such cases, it will be noted removed and annulled by the Director General and councillors as the justice and the nature of the case demands.

Thus done in the session of the Director General and Councillors held at New Amsterdam this 26th February 1654.

Signed by order &c

STUYVESANT, Dr Gen.

CORNELIS VAN RUYVEN Seery.

Secondly—Whereas Johannes Van Buckly, Affiche has given notice according to resolution of the Burgomasters and Schepens of this city. of his marriage not only without the knowledge of his Father but expressly against his prohibition against marrying abroad declared to be legal and proper of which resolution the Director General and Councillors were not apprised.

We request an authentic copy of the same with the written reasons why such resolution was not submitted to the Director General and Councillors for their approbation according to the instruction given Little inferior Bench of Justice of this city. Done at New Amsterdam on the 2^d day of March 1654.

Undersigned,
STUYVESANT.

FIRST MONEY IN USE IN NEW NETHERLANDS.*

The first money in use in New York, then New Netherlands, and also in New England, was seawant, wampum, or peague, for it was known by all those names. Seawant was the generic name of this Indian money, of which there were two kinds—wompan, (commonly called wampum,) which signifies white, and suchanhock sucki, signifying black. Wampum, or wampumpeague, or simply peague, was also understood, although improperly, among the Dutch and English, as expressive of the generic denomination, and in that light was used by them in their writings and public documents. Wampum, or white money, was originally made from the stem or stock of the metean-hock or perriwinkle; suckanhock, or black money, was manufactured from the inside of the shell of the quahaug, (venus mercenaria,) commonly called the hard clam, a round thick shellfish that buries itself a little way in the sand in salt water. The Indians broke off about half an inch of the purple color of the inside, and converted it into beads. These, before the introduction of awls and thread, were bored with sharp stones, and strung upon the sinews of animals, and when interwoven to the breadth of the hand, more or less, were called a belt of seawant or wampum. A black bead of the size of a large straw, about one third of an inch long, bored longitudinally, and well polished, was the gold of the Indians, and always esteemed of twice the value than of the white; but either species was considered by them of much more value than European coin. An Indian chief, to whom the value of a rix dollar was explained by the first clergyman of Rensselaerwyck, laughed exceedingly to think the Dutch should set so high a value upon a piece of iron, as he termed the dollar. Three beads of black and six of white were equivalent among the English to a penny, and among the Dutch to a stuyver; but with the latter, the equivalent number sometimes varied from three and six to four and eight, depending upon the finishing of the seawant. Seawant was also sometimes made from the common oyster shell, and both kinds made from the hard clam shell.

The use of wampum was not known in New England until it was introduced there in the month of October, 1627, by Isaac De Rasier, the secretary of New Netherlands, while on his embassy to the authorities of Plymouth colony, for the purpose of settling a treaty of amity and commerce between that colony and New Netherlands, when he carried wampum and goods, and with them purchased corn at Plymouth. To this introduction of wampum into New England, Hubbard attributes all their wars with the Indians which afterward ensued, and in his history speaks of this circumstance in the following manner:

“Whatever were the honey in the mouth of that beast of trade, there was a deadly sting in the tail. For it is said that they (the Dutch) first brought our people to the knowledge of wampum-peag, and the acquaintance therewith occasioned the Indians of these parts to learn the skill to make it, by which, as by the exchange of money, they purchased store of artillery both from the English, Dutch, and French, which proved a fatal business to those that were concerned in it. It seems the trade thereof was at first by strict proclamation, prohibited by the king. Sed quid non mortalis pectora logis dusi sacri fames! The love of money is the root of evil, &c. Although the general distinction of this seawant was black and white, yet, that in use in New England, was black, blue, and white, and that of the five nations of the Indians was of a purple color. A string of this shell money one fathom long, varied in price from five shillings among the New Englanders, to four gilders (or one dollar sixty-six and a half cents) among the Dutch. The process of trade was this: The Dutch and English sold for seawant to the Indians of the interior their knives, combs, scissors, needles, awls, looking glasses, hatchets, guns, black cloth, and other articles of aboriginal traffic, (the Indians at this time rejected fabrics in which the least white color in their texture was discoverable;) and with the seawant bought the furs, corn, and venison from the Indians on the seaboard, who also, with their shell money bought such articles from the aborigines residing further inland; and by this course, the white men saved the trouble of transporting their furs and grain through the country. Thus, by this circulating medium, a brisk commerce was carried on, not only between the white people and the Indians, but also between different tribes among the latter. So much was this seawant the circulating medium of many of the European colonies in North America, that the different governments found it necessary to make regulations on the subject. In 1641, an ordinance in council in the city of New Amsterdam (now New York,) was enacted, and the Dutch governor, Kieft, which recited that a vast deal of bad seawant or wampum—nasty rough things imported from other places—was in circulation, while the good splendid seawant, usually called Manhattan's seawant, was out of sight or exported, which must cause the ruin of the country. Therefore, in order to remedy the evil, the ordinance provides that all coarse seawant, well stringed, should pass at six for one stuyver only, but the well polished at four for a stuyver; and whoever offered or received the same at a different price should forfeit the same, and also ten guilders to the poor. This is the first public expression of an apprehension of evil to the country from the exportation of specie that we have met with in our history; but like most other matters of the kind, it seems to have regulated itself, and the country went on prospering from the little city of about two hundred and fifty inhabitants, as New York then was; to the great commercial mart, with a population of near four hundred thousand, as it is at present."

BELVIDERE CLUB HOUSE.

The following lithograph is an accurate copy from the original drawing of this old and celebrated house. It was built many years before the commencement of the revolutionary war, and continued in its present state and appearance until about the year 1820, when in order to keep pace with the improvements so rapidly extending in that section of the city it was removed, and the elevation upon which it had its foundation (being something like 60 or 70 feet higher than at present,) made to conform to the grade of the adjacent streets.

It took its name from a wealthy nobleman, and during the occupation of the city by the English, as well as long after, was one of the most popular places of resort for convivial amusements and other entertainments that the city afforded, and was well sustained by many of the most prominent individuals of the times, its situation being at that time a long distance from the city, and from the commanding eminence of its site and the beautiful views presented of Long Island Sound, the rivers on each side of the island, and the Narrows, made it superior in attraction to all houses of like resort.

A portion of the last fifteen or twenty years of its existence, it was occupied, at different periods, by respectable private families as a residence, until the house became in such a dilapidated and untenable condition, it suffered the common fate of most of our old buildings, and was removed to give place to the present improvements.

NEW YORK, February, 1853.

NEIGHBOR VALENTINE:

An antiquarian friend has recently lent me a New York Almanac for the year 1697, and I have copied, for your Manual, "The Epistle Dedicatory," "To the Reader," and some other parts of it, which I think may amuse some of our Knickerbocker friends. The Almanac was undoubtedly printed by Bradford, the first New York printer; the title and last leaf are wanting, which would have made it contain 56 pages. It was edited by one John Clapp, who appears to have been a poet, a freemason, a wag, and a keeper of a house of Entertainment in the Bowry, "about two mile without the city of New York." The Observations (which are poetical) fill a page for each month, and the two last lines are often very broad.

Yours, truly,

E. B. C.

THE Epistle Dedicatory.

To his Excellency Benjamin Fletcher, Capt. General and Governor-in-chief of his Majesties Province of New York, and Territories depending thereon in America, and Vice Admiral of the same; His Majesties Lieut. and Commander-in-chief of the Militia, and of all the Forces by Sea and Land within His Majesties Collony of Connecticut, and of all the Forts and places of strength within the same, &c.

I Do not presume, (may it please your Excellency) to shelter this small Piece (the product of my many spare Minuits,) under your Excellency's Protection and Patronage, in any Confidence of its Worth, or that it can be any ways helpful to your Excellency, whose pregnant and sagacious Genius extends far beyond what I am either able to express or comprehend. But being animated hereunto by some hints received from your Excellency, who wondering that no Person in this Province did undertake to write an Almanack every year, but must be beholden to a stranger for one. This I say (may it please your Excellency) put me upon the work, and to run the venture of those many Censures that attends the Press in matters of this or the like nature. But so it is, to your Excellency I commit it, and either as your Excellency sees cause to dam and stifle the Embryo, or give it Life and Birth, by admitting the Lisencing its Printing, which to the humblest of your Excellency's most dutiful Servants, will be alike acceptable and grateful, who is in all bounden Duty,

Your Excellency's Most Humble

And Most Obedient Servant

JOHN CLAPP.

To the Reader.

Kind Reader:

Having little else to do, and I finding this whole Province beholding to a stranger for a New Almanack every year, I did resolve to set myself upon the Work, and see if I could compose a business not very difficult to be done, and remove the Obligation they have so long had to a stranger. I hope I have at last effected it, which according to the Wellcome it finds, and the esteem it receives in the Province, I shall take my measure, and either endeavour to do better for the future, or make this the first and last I shall ever trouble them with. And all I crave of the kind Reader is, forbear rash and hasty Censures, with which modest Request I shall conclude, and give you a Verse into the Bargain worth half the price of the Almanack, which darted from my wandering Muse just upon my conclusion of this Epistle, and say,

In this sad Age, who thus appears in Print,
If he's not ridicul'd, the D—s in't.

MANNERS AND CUSTOMS.*

I AM indebted for the following ideas of "Men and Manners once," as seen in the middle state of life generally, by facts imparted to me by the aged, to wit:—The Dutch kept five festivals, of peculiar notoriety, in the year, say Kerstrydt, (Christmas;) Nieuw jar, (New year,) a great day of cake; Paas, (the Passover;) Pinxter, (i. e. Whitsuntide;) and San Claas, (i. e. Saint Nicholas, or Christ-kindle day.) The negroes on Long Island, on some of those days, came in great crowds to Brooklyn, and held their field frolics. The observances of New Year day (Nieuw jar) is an occasion of much good feeling and hospitality, come down to the present generation from their Dutch forefathers. No other city in the Union ever aims at the like general interchange of visits. Cakes, wines and punch abound in every house; and, from morning till night, houses are open to receive the calls of acquaintances, and to pass the mutual salutations of a "happy new year," &c. It was the general practice of families in middle life to spin and make much of their domestic wear at home. Short gowns and petticoats were the general in-door dresses. Young women who dressed gay, to go abroad to visit, or to church, never failed to take off that dress, and put on their home-made, as soon as they got home; even on Sunday evenings, when they expected company, or even their beaux, it was their best recommendation to seem thus frugal, and ready for any domestic avocation. The boys and young men of a family always changed their dress for a common dress in the same way. There was no custom of offering drink to their guests; when punch was offered, it was in great bowls.

Dutch dances were very common; the supper on such occasions was a pot of chocolate and bread. The Rev. Dr. Laidlie, who arrived in 1764, did much to preach them into disuse. He was very exact in his piety, and was the first minister of the Dutch Reformed Church who was called to preach in the English language. The negroes used to dance in the markets, where they used tomtoms, horns, &c., for music. They used often to sell negro slaves at the coffee-house. All marriages had to be published beforehand, three weeks at the churches, or else, to avoid that, they had to purchase a license of the governor—a seemingly singular surveillance for a great military chief. We may presume he cared little for the fact, beyond his fee.

Before the Revolution, tradesmen of good repute worked hard; there were none, as masters, mere lookers-on; they hardly expected to be rich; their chief concern, in summer, was to make enough ahead to lay up carefully for a living in severe winter. Wood was even a serious concern to such, when only 2s. 6d. to 2s. a load. None of the stores or tradesmen's shops then aimed at any rivalry, as now. There were no glaring allurements at windows, no over-reaching sign, no big bulk windows; they were content to sell things at honest profits, and to trust to an earned reputation for their share of business. It was the Englishmen from Britain who brought in the painted glass and display. They also brought in the use of open shops at night, an expensive and needless service, for who sells more in day and night, where all are competitors, than they would in one day, if all were closed at night? In former days, the same class who applied diligently in business hours, were accustomed to close their shops and stores at an early hour, and to go abroad for exercise and recreation, or to gardens, &c. All was done on foot, for chaises and horses were few.

The candidates for the Assembly, usually from the city, kept open houses in each ward for one week, producing much excitement among those who thought more of the regale than the public weal.

Physicians in that day were moderate in their charges, although their personal labor was great. They had to make all their calls on foot—none thought of riding. Drs. Baylie and McKnight, when old, were the first who are remembered as riding to their patients. Dr. Attwood is remembered as the physician who had the hardihood to proclaim himself as a man midwife; it was deemed a scandal to some delicate ears, and Mrs. Grany Brown, with her fees of two or three dollars, was still deemed the choice of all who thought women should be modest.

Moving-day was, as now, the first of May from time immemorial. They held no fairs, but they often went to the Philadelphia fairs, once celebrated. At the New Year and Christmas festivals, it was the custom to go out to the ice on Beekman's and such like swamps, to shoot at turkeys; every one paid a price for his shot, as at a mark, and if he hit it so as to draw blood, it was his for a New Year or Christmas dinner. A fine subject this for Dr. Laidlie's preaching and reformation. At funerals, the Dutch gave hot wine in winter, and in summer they gave wine sangaree. I have noticed a singular custom among Dutch families—a father gives a bundle of goose quills to a son, telling him to give one to each of his male posterity.

I saw one in the possession of Mr. James Bogert, which had a scroll appended, saying: "This quill, given by Petrus Byranck to James Bogert, in 1789, was a present, in 1689, from his grandfather, from Holland."

It is now deemed a rule of high life in New York, that ladies should not attend funerals; it was not always so. Having been surprised at the change, and not being aware of any sufficient reason why females should have an exemption from personal attention to departed friends, from which their male relatives could not, I have been curious to inquire into the facts in the case. I find that females among the Friends attend funerals, and also among some other religious communities. I have been well assured that, before the Revolution, the genteel families had ladies to their funerals, and especially if it was a female's. On such occasions, "burnt wine" was handed about in tankards, often of silver. On one occasion—the case of the wife of Daniel Phoenix, the City Treasurer—all the pallbearers were ladies, and this fact occurred since the Revolution.

Many aged persons have spoken to me of the former delightful practice of families sitting out on their "stoops," in the shades of the evening, and there saluting the passing friends, or talking across the narrow streets with neighbors. It was one of the grand links of union in the Knickerbocker social compact. It endeared and made social neighbors—made intercourse on easy terms. It was only to say come, sit down. It helped the young to easy introductions, and made courtships of readier attainment. I give some facts to illustrate the above remarks, deduced from the family of B—, with which I am personally acquainted. It shows primitive Dutch manners. His grandfather died at the age of sixty-three, in 1782, holding the office of alderman eleven years, and once chosen mayor and declined. Such a man, in easy circumstances in life, following the true Dutch ton, had all his family to breakfast, all the year round, at day-light. Before the breakfast, he universally smoked his pipe. His family always dined at twelve exactly. At that time, the kettle was invariably set on the fire for tea, of Bohea, which was always as punctually furnished at three o'clock. Then the old people went abroad, on purpose to visit relatives, changing the families each night in succession, over and over again, all the year round. The regale at every such house was expected, as matter of course, to be chocolate supper and soft waffles. Afterward, when green tea came in as a new luxury, loaf-sugar also came with it; this was broken in large lumps, and laid severally by each cup, and was nibbled or bitten, as needed. The family before referred to actually continued the practice till as late as seventeen years ago, with a steady determination in the patriarch to resist the modern innovation of dissolved sugar while he lived.

Besides the foregoing facts, I have had them abundantly confirmed by others. While they occupied the stoops in the evening, you could see, every here and there, an old Knickerbocker, with his long pipe, fuming away his cares, and ready, on any occasion, to offer another for the use of any passing friend who would sit down and join him. The ideal picture has every lineament of contented comfort and cheerful repose—something much more composed and happy than the bustling anxiety of over-business "in the moderns."

The cleanliness of Dutch housewifery was always extreme; everything had to submit to scrubbing and scouring; dirt in no form could be endured by them, and, as water was in the city, where it was generally sold, still it was in perpetual requisition. It was their honest pride to see a well-furnished dresser, showing copper and pewter in shining splendor, as if for ornament, rather than for use. In all this they widely differed from the Germans—a people with whom they have been erroneously and often confounded. Roost-fowls and ducks are not more different; as water draws one, it repels the other. It was common in families then to cleanse their own chimneys, without the aid of hired sweeps, and all tradesmen, &c., were accustomed to saw their own fuel. No man in middle circumstances of life ever scrupled to carry home his one hundred weight of meal from the market; it would have been his shame to have avoided it. A greater change in the state of society cannot be named than that of hired persons.

Hired women, from being formerly lowly in dress, wearing short gowns of green baize, and petticoats of linsey-woolsey, and receiving but half a dollar a week, have, since they have trebled that wages, got to all the pride and vanity of showing out to strangers as well-dressed ladies. The cheapness of foreign finery gives them the ready means of wasting all their wages in decorations. So true it is, that the Quarterly Review has preserved one fact of menial impudence, in the case of the New York girl, telling her mistress, before her guest, "the more you ring, the more I won't come."

General La Fayette, too, left us a compliment of dubious import, on his late formal entree at New York, when, seeing such crowds of well-dressed people, and no remains of such as he had seen in the period of the Revolution—a people whose dress was adapted to their condition—he exclaimed, "But where is the people?"—emphatically meaning, where is the useful class of citizens, the hewers of wood and drawers of water. Before the Revolution, all men who worked in any employ, always wore his leathern apron before him, never took it off to go in the street, and never had on a long coat. We are glad to witness the rise of new feelings among the Dutch descendants, tending to cherish, by anniversary remembrances, the love and reverence they owe their sires. For this object, as they have no "banding day," they resort to their tutelary protector, Saint Nicholas, on such occasions decorating themselves, or hall, with orange-colored ribbons, and inscribing "Oranje Boven," and garnishing their tables with "Malek and suppawn, with sullities," and their hands with long-stemmed pipes. We are sorry we do not know the history, better than we do, of a Saint so popular as he is, with only his name of St. Claes to help him. He seems to be the most merry and jocular in all the calendar. The boys all welcome him as "the bountiful Saint Nick," and as "D Palrom Van Kinder-vieugd"—i. e., the patron of childerous joy. All we know from Knickerbocker, is what the figure of Hudson Guede Vrouw represented him, as attired in a low-brimmed hat, a large pair of Flemish trunk-hose, and a very long pipe. In 1765, the best families in New York entered into certain sumptuary laws, to restrain the usual expenses and pomp of funerals.

OLD STATES PRISON.*

IN the beginning of the year 1796, a bill "For making alterations in the criminal laws of the State, and the erecting of State prisons," was introduced into the Senate, by Gen. Philip Schuyler, of revolutionary memory, and became a law on the 26th of March of the same year. By this law, two state prisons were directed to be built—one at New York, and the other at Albany. The plan of the prison at Albany was afterward relinquished, and the whole of the money appropriated for both prisons was directed to be applied to the one in this city. John Watts, Matthew Clarkson, Thomas Eddy, John Murray, jr., and Isaac Stoutenburgh, were appointed commissioners for erecting the prison. It was begun in the summer of 1796, and so far finished that the first prisoners were received into it on the 23th of November, 1797. It is now occupied as a brewery by Nash, Beadleson & Co. The buildings and courts originally occupied four acres of ground, having a front, on Washington street, of two hundred and four feet, with wings from each end, extending toward the river. The buildings, comprising the prison, contained fifty-four cells or rooms, twelve feet by eighteen, for prisoners, sufficient for the accommodation of eight persons in each, besides a chapel, dining hall, work-shops, and apartments for the officers of the prison. One of the work-shops was two hundred feet long, twenty wide, and two stories high; another was one hundred and six feet in length, twenty in breadth, and one hundred feet in the middle; part of it was three stories high. The grounds and buildings were surrounded by a stone wall twenty-three feet high, on the river side; fourteen feet high, in front, extending, in length, on one side five hundred feet, and, in breadth, two hundred and seventy-nine feet. The original cost of the grounds, buildings and wharf, was two hundred and eight thousand eight hundred and forty-six dollars.

1806.—Important measures adopted for the defence of the city, The old Potter's Field, at the junction of the Bloomingdale and Post Roads, was ceded to the national government, on which they erected an arsenal, on a very extensive scale; also, at this time was ceded the ground under water, four hundred feet, on which the present Castle Garden, off the Battery, at the foot of Hubert street; and also Fort Gansevoort. These works cost the United States several millions of dollars.

1806.—This year will be ever memorable in the annals of this city, State, and country, for the first successful attempt at steamboat navigation on the Hudson river, by Fulton and Livingston, which has caused such a change in the river trade, and in the commerce and resources of the country at large.

1398—Jan. 8.—Inclement and severe season, and great distress in consequence, which was much augmented by the national embargo that Congress had ordered, which threw out of employment a large number of sailors, who assembled in the Park to solicit relief from the Corporation which was promised them, and they dispersed without exciting any disturbance. Means were immediately devised to employ and assist them. Captain Chauncey received some into the navy yard, who signed articles of war, and the city paid their rations; others were employed in public works, such as leveling hills, and filling up the collect, opening streets, &c. During the winter, soup was distributed in large quantities; and the amount of extra expenditures, by a committee appointed for the purpose, was from one to two thousand dollars a-week.

1813—Jan. 28th.—Sale of the public property in Wall street, site of the old City Hall, viz.: Lot No. 2, T. Kirk, $9,350; No. 3, G. Storms, $8,200; No. 4, G. Griswold, $7,950. In Greenwich street: Lot No. 1, A. Hunt, $8,250; No. 2, do., $4,550; No. 3, J. Graham, $3,700; No. 4, J. Van Orden, $4,450; No. 5, J. Berry, $3,850; No. 6, W. Roe, $4,200; No. 7, $5,050. In Chambers street: No. 1, E. Anderson, $1,850; No. 4, A. Thompson, $2,450. No. 5, in Duane street, W. Alburto, $2,000; and twelve lots at Brooklyn ferry, leased for twenty-one years, for $935 per annum.

1825—October 26.—The completion of the Erie canal was announced by the sound of cannon, from one end of the canal at Buffalo to Albany, and down the Hudson river to the ocean, and in twelve hours; and on the 4th of November, the first canal boat arrived in the morning, and a grand aquatic and civil display was made in the city and harbor, and illuminations in the evening of the public, and many private buildings, fire-works at the City Hall, &c.

1784—February 10.—James Duane, Mayor; Richard Varick, Recorder.

April 14.—The Exchange, in Broad street, turned into a market-place.

September 11.—La Fayette arrived in this city, to embark for France; and was waited upon by the Corporation with an address, and the freedom of the city voted to him.

October 2.—John Jay arrived from Europe, and was welcomed by the Corporation, who paid him the highest honors in their power.

October 6.—Baron Steuben arrived, and was addressed by the Corporation, and the freedom of the city voted to him.

December 2.—General Washington arrived, and was received with the greatest enthusiasm by the citizens. The Corporation made him an address of congratulation and thanks, and voted the freedom of the city.

1788—April—A great riot in the city, called the Doctors' Mob, occasioned by indiscreet exposure and dissection of dead bodies at the hospital. The mob attacked the jail, in a furious manner, to massacre some of the physicians who had taken refuge there; but they were repulsed, and several persons killed. An officer and fifteen of the militia were ordered out to guard the jail.

Ninety-one acres of the Commons sold for £2,409, to T. Buchanan and others. Broadway opened through the fort to the Battery.

The City Hall repaired and enlarged for the use of the Congress, at a great expense to the city, who borrowed the money from the bank, and some private contributions were raised. The whole was expended under the superintendence of Major L. Enfant, who received the thanks of the city, and was offered a lot of ten acres of the public land, near Provoost's lane or street, but politely declined the same.

In 1765 the library room in the City Hall repaired, and Mr. Thomas Jackson appointed librarian, and directed to let the books out for hire, as follows, viz: folios, 2 shillings a week; quartos, 1s; octavos, 6d; his salary, £4 per annum, and his attendance, to deliver and receive books, to be on Mondays and Thursdays, from half-past eleven till one o'clock.

In 1776 the Presbyterian Church also petitioned, in a long and eloquent appeal for the angular lot, lately called the Vineyard, stating the great increase of that persuasion, and the land asked for was unanimously granted to them, at a rent of forty pounds per annum, as follows, viz: 152 feet on the south-west, 214 on north-west, 62 feet on north-east, and 200 on south-east; and the present brick church in Beekman street, erected thereon in 1767. The grant was to John Rogers and Joseph Treat, ministers, and John Morrin Scott, Peter R. Livingston and others, as trustees.

The winter of 1780 was so intensely cold, that two cakes of ice completely closed the North river, from Powles' Hook ferry to that of Cortlandt street. Hundreds of persons crossed daily; artillery, sleighs, with provisions and stores of all kinds passed the bridge of ice. It continued for some considerable time. Gov. Tryon caused the same to be measured, and found the North river, in that place, two thousand yards wide.

May 6th, 1732, a great sale of seven lots of ground, near the Custom House and east of Whitehall street, for the following sums, and to the persons named, viz:

Lot No. 1, to Stephen De Lancey.....	£155

“ 3, to David Clarkson.....	155
“ 4, to John Moore.....	275
“ 5, to Stephen De Lancey.....	192
“ 6, to Robert Livingston, jr., (son of Philip).....	175
“ 7, to Anthony Rutgers.....	239

Average amount, £191 14s. 3d.....£1,342

By which it appears that real estate had increased in value immensely since 1686, when lots in that quarter of the city sold for 35*l.*, and in 1692 in vlie, for about 26*l.*

September 11.—A small gore of land given to Rip Van Dam, upon his petitioning for the same, at the present intersection of Liberty street and Maiden lane, of 103 feet in length, for the nominal sum of ten shillings, as being of little or no value to any one else but him. This man was formerly the lessee of the ferry. The ferry let this year for 243*l.*, exhibiting an increased value over any previous year.

1745.—Only one coach in New York, and that belonged to Lady Murray; and to go and deal in the market the Dutch language must be spoken.

April 19—James Parker, printer, appointed Librarian to the Corporation, with authority to let out the books to be read at sixpence a piece, and those borrowing to give security for double the value of each set taken out, the Corporation to have the preference, and Parker to keep the books in repair at his own cost, and to send for new books to supply the place of old ones lost. This was undoubtedly the first circulating or public library ever kept in this city.

Hotel, in Broadway, and his portrait solicited to be painted at full length for the gallery. The citizens generally waited upon him at the City Hall, in the governor's room, and the clergy and members of the bar in a body. In short, here commenced that scene of national feeling, which followed him like a continual triumph in his progress through the United States. On his return to this city, in September, after having made a visit to Boston, the splendid fete and gala was given to him at Castle Garden, on the 14th September, which, for grandeur, expense and entire effect was never before witnessed in this country. About six thousand persons were assembled in that immense area, and the evening being clear and calm, the whole passed off happily, owing to the excellent arrangements of the committee.

1802—Oct. 11.—A new City Hall voted to be erected, to cost twenty-five thousand dollars, and a premium offered for the best plan, which was subsequently awarded to John Macomb and — Mangin. After much doubt and hesitation, as to the expense, the sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars was finally voted as devoted to that object, and contracts entered into; and the foundation-stone was laid on 20th September, 1803, by Edward Livingston, Mayor, and by the Corporation, with all due ceremony, although the prevalence of the epidemic, at that period, in some measure damped the ardor of the citizens.

October 18.—A very important report made by the Street Commissioner, John Broome, relative to the Fresh Water Pond, which he stated to drain four hundred acres of the land, covered, or soon to be, by the increase of the city. The inadequacy of measures heretofore adopted or proposed, was pointed out, and the alarming evils feared, and since realized, was fully stated. He recommended an open canal, in part, from the East river, through Roosevelt street to the collect, and to the Hudson river, which would be operated upon by the tide, constantly under a head of sixteen inches of water. Posterity will ever regret that this plan, or some other efficient one, was not adopted at that time—(six thousand eight hundred and thirty) feet from East to North river, as above, and twelve feet nine inches rise of land.

THE GREAT FIRE IN 1804.—On the night of the 18th December, about two o'clock, an alarming fire broke out in a grocery store, in Front street, which, being aided by a high wind and cold air, together with the tardy assembling of the citizens and the engines, progressed with unexampled rapidity, until it destroyed many valuable stores and dwellings, with their contents. The whole block, from the west side of Coffee-House slip, in Water street, to the next door to Gouverneur's lane, and including all the buildings in Front street to the water, were swept away, on that side of the slip ; and the fire crossed Wall street, and destroyed the buildings on the east side of the slip. Among the buildings destroyed, were the old coffee house, and several brick stores ; but most of the buildings were of wood, and their destruction caused the immediate erection of new and fire-proof edifices of brick. The whole number of stores and dwelling houses consumed, was about forty, viz.—in Wall street, fifteen ; Front street, seventeen ; Water street, eight. Value of property destroyed, from one to two millions of dollars. It was supposed, at the time, to be the work of eleven combined incendiaries, from anonymous letter sent to a merchant previous to the event. A reward of five hundred dollars was offered by the Mayor, for their discovery and apprehension.

In 1808, New York State Arsenal, in Elm street, built, and the old Arsenal, in Chatham street, corner of Tryon row, was ceded for a free school.

Wednesday, 25th May—Great Tammany procession and ceremony, at Wallaboght, to inter the bones of Americans that perished in the Jersey Prison Ships. The Corporation attended in a body ; the bells were tolled during the procession ; colors were hoisted half-mast, and minute guns fired.

1811--May 19.—A great fire in Chatham street, which broke out about nine o'clock on Sunday morning, near the north-west corner of Duane and Chatham streets, and raged with great fury for several hours, before a brisk wind from north-east, which, for a time, seemed to baffle all the exertions of the firemen and citizens, and sweeping the buildings on both sides of the street, until eighty to a hundred dwellings were consumed. The steeple of the Brick Church, and the cupola of the Jail caught fire, but, by the intrepidity of a sailor, and a prisoner on the limits, the fire was extinguished, and the buildings saved. They were liberally rewarded by the corporation, and the trustees of the Church. Three thousand five hundred dollars per acre paid, by the corporation, for land at Kip's Bay, on which to erect the new Alms-house, on the banks of the East river, six acres, one rood, twenty-seven perches, and eighty-seven square feet, for twenty-two thousand four hundred and ninety-four dollars and fifty cents, and one hundred dollars paid to Alderman Hagerman, for an approved plan of the intended edifice. Third avenue ordered to be opened and regulated. Tammany Hall built.

July 4.—Corporation met at the new City Hall, in the Mayor's room, for the first time, and, on the 2d Monday in August, the offices of the Comptroller and Street Commissioner were removed.

The compiler's attention was attracted, in perusing a scrap book kept by the father of the Hon. Clarkson Crolius, who, at the time mentioned below, was a member of the City Council, by the following proceedings and resolutions relative to the building of the City Hall, commenced in 1803 and completed in 1812.

NAMES OF SOME OF THE FIRST SETTLERS IN AMERICA.

WILLIAM JANSEN DE RAPALJE emigrated from France, with his brother George, in 1623, (in the ship of Capt. Kornelise Jacobie Mey.) Another brother, named Antonio Jansen Van Salers, also emigrated to America in 1631. The first house on Long Island was built at Wallabout, and first inhabited by Joris Jansen de Rapalje, one of the first white settlers on the island, and in which the first child of European parentage was born, whose name was Sarah Rapalje, from whom have descended numerous and influential families.

JOHNSON, or JANSEN.—The first ancestor who emigrated to America from France, was Antonie Jansen Van Salers, the brother of above Jans. Jansen de Rapalje. (General Jeremiah Johnson, a descendant, lately died at Wallabout.)

Def't says the Plt'f had no knowledge of Milling inasmuch as complaints were made of his incapacity to him defendant he therefore discharged him.

The W. Court having heard the argument of parties on both sides and examined their evidence, condemn the Def't to pay the Plt'f the sum of fl. 200. for that he hath discharged the Plt'f without any legitimate cause from his engagement and for the affront, loss of time, etc. caused to the Plt'f. and respecting the costs incurred it is ordered that the def't shall pay the costs of the appearance of the Secretary and Messengers, and for the remaining costs the Plt'f shall assume them.

Also that those who on this account must lose and remove their lots and houses may be paid out of the above mentioned Tax already collected, according to the placard of the 17th March last, and the orders to the Book Keeper, Jacobus Van de Water, which so express and promise.

Secondly; that those who must accept any houses and lots within this city instead of their lost houses and lots on the assessment made, may be freed from those who may hereafter come to claim the same Houses and lots.

Requests therefore that the Schout may not levy Execution on her Estate here until she receive an answer wether the debt is paid there, the rather as from the Estate here, the fathers property must be forthcoming to the children.

Whereupon the Court order that the Schout should not proceed with the execution until further ordered

The Honble Hr. Governor General appearing at the meeting in the City Hall recommended the Burgomasters and Schepens and the Burghers Council of War most particularly to take good care for the prevention of all mischief either by night or by day which may be occasioned by the malice of any persons and the insolence of his Honrs. Soldiery, further enjoining on them that if any soldiers be found in the streets exhibiting insolence that they should be secured and represented to his Honor who then should punish them according as he deserved etc.

Wherenpon the Court resolved to cause the following to be published to the end that good watch be kept to obviate and prevent mischief as much as possible.

Whereas the Provoost and Sargeants of the train bands of this city complain that the men do not keep parade and watch as they ought but absent themselves very frequently, so that they are unable to place sentinels on their posts through want of men or to prevent menacing dangers which arises only because the incurred fines are not collected and paid nor satisfaction made to the Corporals.

Therefore the Burgomasters and Council of War of this city New Orange hereby order and charge the Provoost with the Sargeant and the 4 Train Bands of the Watch henceforth to collect the fines the next morning on the breaking up of the Watch and on refusal of payment forthwith, without regard of persons to take so much goods out of their houses as the incurred fines amount to.

Thus done, in the City Hall of the city of N. Orange on the 2d November, Ad. 1674.
